Fear Crewman Is Drowned In Black Near Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) — A 30-year-old experienced tugboat crewman was feared drowned in Black River about 300 yards from the merging of four rivers. He was believed to have fallen overboard about midnight.

Dragging operations were underway today for Albert T. Sylvester, of Chickasaw, Ala.

Tugboat Captain Harold K. Carter said it was believed that Sylvester fell overboard about midnight. The captain said the crewman was awakened at 11:30 p.m. to stand watch.

Mr. Sylvester was discovered missing just after the tugboat, Rebel Warrior, passed under the bridge at Jonesville and was proceeding slowly up river to enter the Ouachita River where Black, Ouachita, Little River and Tensas meet.

Captain Carter said the boat tied up at the bank and a search was immediately instigated. An all-night search was conducted along banks in the hope that the crewman had swum ashore.

The Catahoula Sheriff Department with Sheriff George McGee in charge, conducted the hunt for the missing man. The Natchez, Miss., emergency rescue squad, lead by Chief Pete Guido, were dragging Black River at mid-morning.

Others aiding in the search were deputies C. A. McGuffee, W. W. Higgins, Max Good, J. W. Adams, state troopers and from Natchez were Capt. (Put) Steinspring, Rufus Clark and Pete Guido, Jr.

The Rebel Warrior, owned by Black Warrior Towing Co. of New Orleans, was towing two barges from New Orleans to Calion, Ark., Captain Carter said, with an eight-man crew aboard.

Monroe Charity Spending Rapped

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A state audit said today the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital at Monroe on June 30, 1957, spent $506 more than its general fund revenues.

"Every effort should be made to keep expenditures within the available revenues," the report added.

Earlier, the state charity hospital had returned $13,436 to the State Treasury after making adjustments in a previous year's unspent balance in an appropriation.

In mentioning income from patients, the audit said total charges of $2,352 were billed. Of this amount, $1,688 was collected and $596 was charged off as uncollectible.

Pressure For Tax Cut Building Up; Ike Sitting Tight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure for a quick tax cut built up today with new calls from Republican and Democratic members of Congress.

But Vice President Nixon said President Eisenhower is withholding any decision on such additional antirecession measures as tax cuts or increased public works spending until the statistics for March are available.

Official figures on unemployment, production and other economic factors are being compiled now, but won't be in final form until sometime in April.

Ill - Timed

Nixon said there are some signs of improvement but that "we can't make any final judgment until the figures for March are all in, and we are not prepared to say at this time what March is going to show."

He indicated the administration is concerned that ill-timed tax reduction or increased federal spending might be inflationary.

If a tax cut should be necessary, Nixon said he would favor a broadly based reduction aimed at creating jobs. Such cuts, he said, should encourage investment as well as increased purchasing power. Thus, he said, he is against any action that would only raise personal income tax exemptions.

Boosting these exemptions was advocated by several senators. There also were proposals for cutting corporate income taxes and excise levies. Some legislators urged stepped-up spending on public works and slum clearance, as well as federal aid for emergency school construction.

Outside the government, the Committee for Economic Development suggested a temporary 20 per cent slash in all personal income taxes if the economy this month and next sags below February levels. The CED, a privately supported research organization, said such a slash, possibly starting around midyear and lasting for nine months, would pump about 7½ billion dollars into the economy.

The organization also recom-

Voting Board To Consider Budget Today

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The Louisiana Voting Machine Board, which Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. called a "rubber stamp," meets again today to act on a new budget.

The budget consideration could be cut and dried, or it could be highly controversial.

Martin, one of the nine board members, last Monday forced a one-week delay in budget action with a 3-2 vote.

The secretary of state, a political for of Gov. Earl Long, had demanded "reasonable" time to prepare for budget talks after administration leaders last week sought immediate board approval of the budget.

Third Week

James M. McLemore, Long's state custodian of voting machines, has proposed a $792,044 budget for his agency, up 156,292 over current spending.

Haste is necessary in acting on the budget because the Governors Budget Committee tomorrow begins its third week of budget examinations in preparing for the 1958 Legislature. All state agencies must submit their proposals.

Martin, ousted by the 1956 Legislature from his other public posts as state custodian of voting machines and state insurance commissioner, has been sharply critical since then of vote machine supervision by McLemore.

He told the board in a heated session last Monday, when it tried without success to get prompt action on McLemore's budget:

Selman Hangar Bid Opening Is Set Tomorrow

Bids on leases for three municipally-owned hangars at Selman Field will be opened when City Council meets at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The city ordered formal advertisement on the bids February 25.

Brought out during the discussion of the lease of the airport facilities by City Council was insurance, both fire and extended coverage. At that time, Council members voted to stress that the city could not be responsible for rebuilding the hangars in the event of damage or destruction which will cost more than insurance being carried on the particular building.

The large hangar at Selman Field was assessed for insurance reasons at $50,000, while the two others were listed at $35,000 and $25 000 respectively.

BURIAL IN CHICAGO

Liz Leaves For Funeral Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor leaves a sickbed tonight for a sad flight to Chicago and the funeral tomorrow of her husband, producer Mike Todd.

With her will be singer Eddie Fisher, one of Todd's best friends; MGM designer Helen Rose, a close friend of Mrs. Todd; Dr. Rexford Kennamer, the actress' physician; Howard Taylor, her brother; and Dick Hanley, Todd's executive secretary.

Body In Casket

Miss Taylor was in bed with a virus at the time of the crash. The illness had kept her from accompanying Todd on the flight.

Todd's body, sealed in its casket, is already en route via Santa Fe train to Chicago, home town of the colorful showman.

His son Michael Jr. had wanted the body cremated in Albuquerque where it was taken after Saturday's air crash which killed Todd, 50, writer Art Cohn, 49, pilot Bill Verner, 45, and copilot Tom Barclay, 34.

But Miss Taylor balked. She told Mike Jr. that his father did not want cremation.

The private funeral rites will be held in Jewish Waldheim Cemetery at Forest Park, Ill., a Chicago suburb.

Deepest Sympathy

Todd's mother Mrs. Sophie Goldbogen, 91, a patient in a sanitarium here, was not notified of her son's death. An attendant explained that the shock "might prove very damaging to the patient."

Telegrams were delivered in bales to the Todd home here, including one from Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower which read: "The President and I extend our deepest sympathy."

Cables from 17 foreign countries also were received.

A memorial service will be held at Temple Israel here at the time of the burial. George Jessel will deliver a eulogy at the rites, ex-

Key Holloway entertained several guests at a barbecue Sunday afternoon at his comfortable lake-side camp, off the Arkansas road outside of West Monroe. The camp barbecue pits were under the supervision of co-host W. M. Smith, barbecue master. During the afternoon there was horseback riding.

Mr. Holloway's camp was built several months ago but has not yet been officially named. Though he's in no hurry to name the camp his friends yesterday offered several suggestions, including "Key's Hideaway," "Key Haven," "Fort Holloway," "Key Acres," "Gunsmoke," and "Sambo's Crippled Goose

Jones Will Oppose Gas Tax Increase

Calcasieu Solon Had Introduced Hike Earlier

Rep. Horace Lynn Jones, sponsor of the defeated 1956 gas gathering tax bill that would have increased teachers' salaries, said here today he would oppose any gas gathering bill introduced in the legislature this May.

Jones, here on private business, said the "climate is wrong for any new taxes for anything." He said the people "oppose any new taxes at this time due to the economic recession we are now experiencing — later it may be different."

The Calcasieu parish lawmaker said he would work "to help the teachers consolidate and retain the many increased benefits they have gained in the past 10 years. If they (the teachers) can keep the gains they have already received they will be lucky," Jones said.

"The legislators I have talked to recently are in a majority against any new taxes whatever. And at this time it looks as though only a new tax can provide a teacher pay increase." Jones said he thinks the views of the legislators is a reflection of the views of the people as a whole.

"Everyone is for increased pay for the teachers," Jones said, "but we must get the money first. With the current attitude for decreased taxes, particularly on a federal level, I think it would be naive to believe taxes could be increased in the state legislature in May."

Jones said teachers have "gained monumental increases in benefits in the past 10 years and I am proud that I introduced and supported much of the legislation that made it a reality."

Jones, who identified himself as an independent legislator gave the Earl Long Administration credit for "some of the better advances teachers have gained."

"Until 1948," Rep. Jones said, "teachers were paid whatever the state could afford. At that time the first minimum teacher schedule of $2,400 (a year) was enacted."

In 1952, Jones said, he sponsored the bill that dedicated a portion of the sales tax for a 10 per cent teacher pay increase. This measure was supported by the Kennon administration.

Jones said his 1956 bill establishing a new teacher salary schedule gave Louisiana the highest among teachers in the South. "Of course the gas bill was defeated by one vote and the provisions of the schedule were never met," Jones said.

"However, after the gas bill went down to defeat the Legislature provided half the amount needed to pay the increase."

In advising the teachers to strive to retain the benefits they already had received and "not fight for almost doomed gains at this time," he said he believed their chances might be enhanced "when the time is right."

He pointed out that in the event the tidelands dispute is eventually decided in favor of the state instead of the federal government the teachers "will realize their fondest dreams." He said that "although nobody knows when and how the supreme court will rule it may be decided next year."

Jones, in expressing a hope that teachers would not be subjected to a cut this year, said the governor's

OFF TO THE ARMY — Elvis Presley, 23-year-old rock and roll singer and movie actor, looks back at his parents after he boarded an Army bus at the local draft board on his way to the Army induction center this morning in Memphis. Presley said he had no sleep last night. (AP Wirephoto.)

Elvis Jokes As 2-Year Hitch Begins

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley reached draft board headquarters half an hour early today to begin a two-year hitch in the Army.

The teen-agers' rock 'n' roll idol, elegant in dark blue trousers and subdued grey check jacket, was filled with cheerful wisecracks. He mounted a quick but fruitless campaign for recruits among the crowd of newsmen.

Semi - Crew

Presley was accompanied by his parents. He carried a pigskin shaving kit case. His black hair, normally swept in a luxuriant ducktail cut with long sideburns, bristoled up in a modified crew.

Fifteen police officers were detailed to the downtown building where the draft board is located. However, the crowd on hand was small. A steady drizzle was falling.

Endless Forms

Presley and 11 other inductees answered rollcall.

Presley, a phenomenon in entertainment circles, will be in uniform tomorrow unless an unexpected hitch develops.

As a $78 a month private he will take quite a salary cut.

The inductees were taken to Kennedy Hospital for a long day of physical examinations and the filling out of endless forms.

By Train

Swearing-in ceremonies were set for late today. Just when Elvis' group leaves for the reception center at Ft. Chaffee, Ark., depends on whether there are at least seven volunteers reporting here to go with the 13 draftees.

If there are, the new soldiers leaves tonight by charter bus. If not, they'll go tomorrow by train, switching to a bus at Little Rock.

Elvis, 22, returned from Hollywood 10 days ago after his latest picture was completed. He's had little to say about Army life as

Reading Ability Of Americans Hit

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The average American can't read a bit faster now than he could in the sixth grade, an expert in the field said today.

When he finishes grade school the average child can read about 200 words a minute. And there he stays.

Dr. Nila Banton Smith, director of the reading clinic at New York University, said in an interview that reading courses should be required right through the 12th grade. Students should be reading at least 600 words per minute at graduation, she said. Exceptionally gifted students could boost that rate to 1,000 words.

At NYU, most of Dr. Smith's students are business executives.

"In 14 two-hour sessions we are usually able to treble their reading speed," she said. "They not only learn to read faster, they learn to understand what they're reading. The same thing could be done, and should be done, for all our high school students."

ENTER WEST POINT

'Corky' Wants To Follow Dad

CHESTER HEIGHTS, Pa. (AP) — Corky Kelly, son of one of the nation's first heroes of World War II, has decided he wants to follow the footsteps of his father to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Corky, formally known as Colin P. Kelly III, is a 17-year-old high school senior on whose behalf President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1941 wrote a letter to the President of the United States in 1956.

The letter, written when Corky was 16 months old asked that the "merits of a young American youth of goodly heritage" be considered for appointment to the academy "as a token of the nation's appreciation of the heroic services of his father," Army Air Force Capt. Colin P. Kelly Jr.

Capt. Kelly, flying B17 out of Clark Field in the Philippines in the early days of the war, first was credited with sinking the Japanese battleship Haruna. It turned out later, however, that his target was the heavy cruiser Ashigara, which was not sunk.

Disclosed Today

Corky lives in this suburban Philadelphia community with his mother and stepfather, Dr. and Mrs. J. Watson Pedlow, who disclosed Corky's intentions today.

Mrs. Pedlow said the family planned a trip to West Point soon to determine what requirements Corky must meet. In the meantime, his precollege examination records have been forwarded to the academy.

West Point is probably more than a year off for Corky. Mrs Pedlow said that in preparation for a possible appointment, he had been accepted by an unnamed college where he planned a year of study.

"We hope he can quietly enter West Point like any other plebe

House Postpones Consideration Of GI Pay Hike Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today postponed until tomorrow consideration of a 668-million-dollar bill to raise servicemen's pay.

Following congressional custom, today's session was dedicated to eulogies of Rep. George Long (D-La), who died Saturday.

Managers of the bill, which contains a number of features designed to make careers in uniform more attractive, said they will try to complete debate and bring it to a vote tomorrow.

Practically all career servicemen would get raises. There would be none for officers and enlisted men in the first two years of service, most of whom are doing obligated service.

Not The Rank

The raises would be higher in the upper grades, both officer and enlisted, to encourage ambitious young men to stay in the service.

Enlisted men who acquired specially needed military or technical skills could be rewarded with the pay but not the rank of higher grades, or by proficiency pay raises of $50, $100 or $150 a month.

In exceptional cases, a top enlisted man could earn as much as $10,140 a year total compensation, a four-star officer as much as

Senate Group Makes Charge In New Report

Officials Of 5 Labor Unions Singled Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rackets Committee reported that "some 10 million dollars in union funds have been either stolen, embezzled or misused" in 15 years by officials of five labor unions.

Police Gazette

It listed them as the Teamsters, Bakery Workers, United Textile Workers, Operating Engineers, and Allied Industrial Workers unions.

The report, signed by seven members of the bipartisan committee, drew a sharp dissent from the eighth member.

Sen. McNamara (D-Mich) appended a report of his own calling the money figures "phony" and assailing what he termed "antilabor bias" in the majority findings.

McNamara said, "The colorful language and some of the findings in these chapters are more related to the old Police Gazette than to a supposedly objective congressional report."

The committee singled out employers in seven states for what was described as "union busting" tactics. The employers were accused of using labor consultant Nathan Shefferman's services for this purpose.

The report said Shefferman's operations "provide a shocking indictment of the activities of a number of employers."

All State

The firms cited were Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; Whirlpool Corp. Marion, Ohio, and Clyde, Ohio; Morton Frozen Food Co., Webster City, Iowa; Mennen Co., Morristown, N. J.; J. V. Pilcher Co., Louisville; Seamprufe Co., McAlester, Okla.; All State Insurance Co., a Sears affiliate, Skokie, Ill.; Englander Co., Chicago; and H. P. Wasson Co., Indianapolis.

McNamara said he didn't think the committee went far enough in its probe of management misconduct. He suggested that industry should consider the AFL-CIO example of adopting a code of ethical practices.

The majority report said its

Winnie Flies To In-Law's Villa

ROQUEBRUNE, France (AP) — Lord Moran Sir Winston Churchill's private physician, flew in from London today. He reported he did not believe his patient's condition was serious.

Lord Moran arrived by plane with Churchill's daughter, Mrs. Christopher Soames. She echoed the doctor's statements.

The 83-year-old Churchill suffered a slight setback Saturday in his recovery from pneumonia and pleurisy that struck him last month.

Sources close to the household said Churchill is making a normal and satisfactory recovery from the relapse.

Lady Churchill lunched at the plush Hotel de Paris in Monte Carlo. She told a reporter there that her husband was much better.

Lord Moran, speaking at the air port before driving to the villa where Churchill is staying, said his latest news from the villa was not alarming.

Mrs. Soames said "I was pining to see him" and that since her father's return to England was delayed she decided to come here.

WEBSTER FIRST

Rainach Points To Probe Pattern

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

BATON ROUGE (AP)—State Sen. W. M. Rainach today described a Webster Parish grand jury probe of the FBI as "part of a general pattern to move the South into an offensive against integration."

The chairman of the southwide Citizen Councils of America warned that FBI interference also was resulting in non-cooperation by local officials and could mean a breakdown in federal law enforcement in the South.

The Webster grand jury summoned FBI agents who had investigated Negro vote registration.

Home Director

Last week, the jurors censured M. Wilson White, assistant U. S. attorney general in charge of civil rights, for refusal to permit the FBI agents to testify fully. The jury also indicted a Minden Negro funeral home director for attempted intimidation of a public official.

"This is the first move to bring the judicial power of the state into play to prevent federal agents from intimidating southern officials at the direction of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People," said Rainach, chairman of Louisiana's joint legislative committee on segregation.

Just as a recent advertisement sponsored by his committee in a New York newspaper was the first step in a "national campaign to present the South's cause in the northern court of public opinion," the segregation leader said the grand jury probe opened up "a new avenue of resistance in the southern states to illegal federal invasion."

Not Incentive

"The Webster Parish action has historical significance. The grand jury investigation originated with local officials but it has southwide implications.

"Because a person is an officer of the federal government he is not immune to punishment for violation of state laws," he said.

"If a federal official does not have respect for local authority, there is not much incentive for a local government to have respect for federal authority.

"I know of three sheriffs who already have told the FBI to dig up its own information," Rainach added in a telephone interview.

"They said because of federal interference they had their hands full and didn't have time to help the FBI. They felt they should concentrate on local law enforcement and leave federal enforcement up to the FBI.

Aided Probe

"Since 90 per cent of FBI work is done in cooperation with local officials," Rainach said, "this could lead to a breakdown in enforcement of federal laws."

The grand jury report said that due to interference by the assistant attorney general "several of the agents did not give important information which would have aided this investigation."

Rainach said White's appointment has not been confirmed by the U. S. Senate. He added, "his action in withholding information, interfering with the operation of a state grand jury reflects on his qualifications for the job."

Senate Group

findings were not intended as any "wholesale indictment" of either labor unions or employers. Rather, it said, the findings should be "a danger signal" to the others in these fields, the vast majority of whom it termed undoubtedly honest.

The second section of the two-part report will be filed "toward the end of the week," a committee member said.

Welfare Funds

Without going into detail, the report urged Congress to consider legislation in five fields: (1) to regulate and control pension, health and welfare funds; (2) to regulate and control union funds; (3) to "insure union democracy"; (4) to curb activities of middlemen in labor-management disputes; and (5) to let states take over where the National Labor Relations Board declines to assume jurisdiction.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell said in a statement the committee's recommendations "follow generally the proposals President Eisenhower made to Congress three months ago." He expressed hope the Senate committee findings will prod Congress to act quickly.

The majority charged that Dave Beck, former president of the Teamsters, "had taken, rather than borrowed, $370,000" of the union's funds which he called loans.

It accused businesses, both large and small, of profiting from "sweetheart" labor contracts with substandard terms of little or no benefit to the employes covered. It called for a law to punish middlemen in such dealings, as well as employers and union officials who work with them.

The majority handed down "over-all conclusions" that "one man dictatorships thrived" in the investigated unions, with rank and file members deprived of any voice through fear, intimidation and violence.

In general the majority found that violence in labor disputes "still exists to an extent where it may be justifiably labeled a crime against the community;" that enforcement of laws against strike violence has been lax; that some lawyers for unions have been engaged in "unethical practices debasing to the standards of their profession."

Smith said he had no statement to make.

King said the boys gave no reason for the shooting.

Sometime after they left Sunday school, White said, the boys broke into a store and stole four .22-caliber pistols. About 2:20 p.m. they entered Blair's open air market. Blair was working on a rifle. The boys asked him if it was a real gun and he said it was.

Then Robert Smith said, "This one's real too," drew out a pistol and started firing.

The brothers then shot out store lights and windows and fled. Robert ran to an old cotton gin about six blocks away. Police moved in on the building.

"I'll shoot the first one I can see," Robert shouted at them.

Tear gas shells were lobbed into the building, then the officers entered.

Sheriff White said he found Robert in a second floor loft, pistols in each hand and pointed toward him. White said: "I had to bluff him. I told him I didn't want to shoot him but I would. Then he dropped the guns and came to me.

"I asked the tough little monkey where his brother was and he told me, 'I don't know where he is but I hope he shoots all of you when you find him.'" mended short-term public works and accelerated federal spending.

David was found in the basement of the family home, unarmed.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, reiterated his proposal that income tax withholding be temporary suspended. He also proposed extending unemployment benefits and speeding up public works projects. In a television interview, Reuther called for fast action and said the recession "is going to get worse" unless this is done.

Mixed in with the demands for quick tax cuts were go-slow warnings and expressions of outright opposition.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said he did not want to "step into a tax cut which would mean a big deficit." But Bridges, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, conceded on a TV program that "the stimulus of a proper tax cut might be helpful."

Sen. Ellender (D-La) said he is against cutting taxes when public works spending appears likely to increase.

The equipment will dig out the shattered and buried pieces of the Lockheed Lodestar, the Lucky Liz, in an effort to determine what made it crash.

Phillip Goldstein, investigator in charge of the CAB's Santa Monica, Calif., office, said it would be several weeks before this can be established. Investigators said the plane was traveling almost straight down when it struck.

The bill adopts some basic principles recommended by the Cordiner committee, but does not accept all the departures from past military practice which the committee advocated.

This group, headed by Ralph J. Cordiner, president of General Electric Co., came out for heavy emphasis on needed skills and on high pay for top ranks, to create a predominantly career force and cut down the costly turnover of highly trained men.

The bill would create two additional top pay grades for officers and two for enlisted men.

The pay raises would apply to retired and reserve as well as active personnel.

Three days later, Capt. Kelly's B17 was attacked by Japanese fighters as the bomber was returning to Clark Field in the Philippines from a mission. Explosions were set off aboard the bomber and six of the eight-man crew, acting on Capt. Kelly's orders, escaped by parachute. One man was killed at his station. Capt. Kelly failed to clear the ship.

GOOD HAY — For good hay production, care plus right fertilizer combination has to be used.

1,000 Entered In Chicken Contest

Baton Rouge, (Special) — Over 1,000 entries, from 54 of Louisiana's 64 parishes, have been entered in the Chicken of Tomorrow Contest to be held in Alexandria, April 1-3, announces Clyde Ingram, poultry specialist with the LSU Agricultural Extension Service.

This show, which is sponsored by the Louisiana Market Poultry Show, the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and the Agricultural Extension service, established a record last year by having the largest number of entries of any of the similar ones held throughout the country, and this year promises to be even larger, according to Ingram.

Keen Johnson, Vice President for Public Affairs of Reynolds Metals Company, will be the featured speaker at the Honors Day Luncheon to be held at the Bentley Hotel at noon on April 3. Johnson will be remembered as one of the dynamic speakers at the last Farm and Home Week held at Louisiana State University. Ingram asserts.

Elimination Shows

Prior to the state show, some 54 parish elimination shows will be held at which the top 25 per cent of the exhibitors will be permitted to send entries to the state show. The exhibits will consist of eight weeks old cockerels of a recognized meat strain of chickens.

The parish shows, states Ingram, have developed into one of the main features of the contest. Sponsored by civic and commercial organizations whose members are interested in promoting the poultry industry in Louisiana, these shows have helped to sell improved practices in brooding and managing poultry flocks.

Chicks are now being produced in a period of 8 weeks instead of 12 weeks through greater efficiency, better breeding and feeding and through improved mangement practices. These practices have supplied consumers with an end product of top quality, advises Ingram.

Cash Prizes, Five Plaques

Baton Rouge, (Special) — A total of $175 in cash prizes and five plaques will be awarded to members of the Louisiana Future Farmers of America in an essay contest on farm cooperatives, announces Dr. M. D. Woodin, head of the agricultural economics department at Louisiana State University.

The contest is sponsored by the LSU Department of Agricultural Economics, Louisiana Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the Vocational Agriculture Education Department of the Louisiana State Department of Education.

A $50 cash prize and a plaque will go to the FFA member who submits the outstanding essay, about 1,500 words in length, on any topic dealing with the nature, organization and operation of agricultural cooperatives, Dr. Woodin explains.

In addition to the state championship award, $25 in cash, and a plaque will be awarded to each of four area winners. There will also be a $25 cash prize for the person who submits the essay presenting the best idea on coooperative development. All essays will be eligible for the "best idea" award, whether or not they won state or district awards.

Essays must be submitted to Dr. Paul Roy, Agricultural Economics Department, LSU, not later than April 15.

Futher information on the contest may be obtained from Vocational Agriculture teachers, who are supplied with literature about cooperatives, or by writing Dr. Roy at LSU, Baton Rouge.

Kind Of Seed Planted Makes Big Difference

The kind of seed you plant in the spring could make a big difference in the size and quality of the crop you harvest next summer or fall. The quality of seed may affect your profits for years to come.

Most farmers plant good seed, asserts A. G. Killgore, associate agronomist for seed work with the Agricultural Extension Service at Louisiana State University.

He cautions that planting of combine-run seed may introduce as much as 5 times more weed seed into a crop than would be planted from commerically cleaned seed.

In some cases the germination of combine-run seed may be very poor and poor stands result. The agronomist says that the cost is high for planting poor seed of doubtful germination and seed containing high percentage of weeds.

By reading labels on sacks of seeds before you buy you can discover the name, kind, variety of seed, the purity, approximate germination and freedom from weed seed that a batch of seed contains. The old adage "good seed is half the crop" is still a mighty good way of looking at farming efficiency.

Drainage Job Nears Completion

A group drainage job is nearing completion south of Mer Rouge. This canal was designed, planned and staked by Soil Conservation Service technicians, assisting the Northeast Soil Conservation District. The following farms are benefited by this project:

John Jones Estate, Essul Peyton, Bell Estate and Bacon Estate. Approximately 670 acres of cropland will be drained.

Precision land leveling jobs have been started on the below named farms: Brown Ferrell, Duke Shackelford, Fort Doles, Roscoe Ramer, John Shackelford, and Conrad Stallings.

Surveys and designs are in the process of being worked up on several other farms (Wayne McDonald and H. W. Tilbury).

Deadening and girdling cull trees to release small pine from shading and overcrowding have been completed and checked on the following farms:

Mrs. Virginia Barham — 40 acres, Joe Davenport — 80 acres, O. E. Montgomery — 40 acres, Kelsey Sawyer — 12 acres and H. M. Sawyer — 8 acres.

Pine tree seedlings (loblolly) have been planted on approximately 300 acres of timberland in Morehouse Parish this year. This represents 300,000 seedlings. These trees were purchased by the farmer through the district from the Louisiana Forestry Commission. The Soil Conservation Service office in Bastrop is now taking applications for tree orders to be delivered this winter (December, 1958 — January, 1959).

Irish Potato Crop Is Being Planted Late

The Louisiana Irish potato crop for 1958 is being planted later this year. Crop and weather conditions under which the crop will be planted may possibly cause hollow heart of potatoes, asserts John A. Cox, Agricultural Extension horticulturist at Louisiana State University. Hollow heart is not a disease, the horticulturist advises.

It is a cavity, surrounded by corky tissue that sometimes appears within the potato when it has grown rapidly and become extremely large. The condition results in a somewhat irregular cavity in the center of the tuber.

The horticulturist advises that you can prevent hollow heart by close spacing of the crop on the row.

For example, on good rich land make spacing of plants 8 to 10 inches instead of 12 to 14. Usually the larger Irish potatoes are affected greatest by the hollow heart, caused by several factors such as too much nitrogen as fertilizer, plenty of rainfall, favorable temperature and other conditions ideal for rapid growth.

VIEWING AGRICULTURE

With J. J. JOYCE, JR.

Due to the high costs of farm production it is necessary to put farming on a business basis and to do so good records are absolutely necessary. Farm records always tell a story and the most important story that farm records can tell is the cost of production and how and where those costs will be utilized.

One of the most important things that farm records can show is the cost of production of farm enterprises. The majority of farms today are operated without records and too often farmers are not able to determine the cost and profit from each of their enterprises.

Without records it is impossible to tell whether all enterprises are actually making a profit. Also, farm records will tell us how much of our resources are being used to produce farm commodities.

For example, if we use 60 per cent of our resources, land, labor, capital, and management, to produce an agricultural commodity that returns only 40 per cent of the net income from the total farm, we can assume that the farm planning is out of balance. This indicates the function of farm records and shows that good records serve to build the foundation for future planning.

Plans that are based on a good foundation are probably the most valuable task that a farmer can spend his time on. This is hard to do under adverse weather conditions and the importance of livestock on many farms that are predominately a row crop operation was graphically and clearly brought out. Many farmers paid their bills through the returns of livestock. On farms where no livestock was raised, the operation was under debt.

Future farm records will help a farmer when time comes to file income tax returns and for participation in government programs such as soil bank, acreage reserve and others.

RECORDS VALUABLE

Farm records are very valuable to those trying to secure farm financing for future operation. A well made plan based on good records always appeals to those who lend money.

These are just a few illustrations showing the importance of farm records and the time spent keeping records will give greater returns than time spent doing anything else on the farm.

Conservation Highlights

George Russell of Liddieville has recently installed a pipe drop structure in the outlet end of a drainage ditch. This structure is a safeguard to prevent excessive washing where water is disposed. The structure was designed by T. A. May, Soil Conservation Service engineer of Winnsboro, and a portion of the cost of materials will be paid by the Agricultural Conservation program.

Farmers of Franklin Parish can get help from the Soil Conservation Service, and the Agricultural Conservation program to install culverts or structures in the outlet ends of drainage ditches, terraces, or water ways where excess water is being discharged into larger ditches, canals, or streams.

This practice can be used very effectively on many farms for a more effective soil and water conservation program. The purpose of the practice is to prevent the development or growth of gullies by rainfall run-off. These structures are generally needed and recommended for the lower ends of farm water ways, outlet ends of terraces and drainage ditches, and at water concentration points of irrigated and other land where overfalls are involved. The Agricultural Conservation Program will pay approximately 50 per cent of the costs of these structures if they are installed under the supervision of a Soil Conservation Service representative.

Drainage Work

The right of way has been cleared for drainage work on the farm of John Snyder. Survey crews have the work staked out, and the Northeast Soil Conservation District dragline is excavating the ditches.

J. H. Durr attended a state meeting of Rural Development Workers in Baton Rouge on March 6, representing the Soil Conservation Service. Others who attended the meeting from Franklin Parish were Claude Taylor, associate county agent, and Lantz Womack, chairman of the Rural Development Committee of Franklin Parish. Franklin Parish is one of three parishes in Louisiana selected for Rural Development Work. A concentrated effort is being made by federal, state, and local agencies to assist small farmers of the parish to have a more substantial income. Two other parishes, Avoyelles and Washington, are promoting a program similar to this one.

Bermuda Grass

W. E. Ferguson of Swampers came by the S. C. S. office to place his order for coastal Bermuda grass. Coastal Bermuda is a hybrid and does not produce seed. However, it can be established rather quickly by planting live sprigs. The success of the planting will depend upon good land preparation and planting fresh sprigs as soon after digging as possible. Farmers who intend to plant Coastal Bermuda grass this year should contact the A. S. C. office for approval and assistance in cost of the planting material. Trucks will go after the Coastal Bermuda about April 1, and bring it to a central location in the parish. To get your order delivered, contact the S. C. S. office in Winnsboro.

King Cotton's Throne Still A Little Shaky

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is an editorial issued by the Louisiana Agricultural Extension Service for publication in the state press.

King Cotton's throne is still a little shaky. The economic situation of the cotton industry is still very serious, and there are possibilities that it could get worse. But those who try to look on the bright side of things nevertheless can find a few bright spots. From some points of view the situation looks a little more encouraging than it has in some recent years and the grower can find more reasons for doing a good job of cotton production.

For one thing, although the surplus still is large, it is down from previous years. On August 1, 1956, the carryover was 14.5 million bales. Indications now are that on August 1, 1958, it will be about 8 million bales. There is something like a shortage of some high grades. Middling and better grades are said to be as scarce as when the Korean War started. That looks like a break for farmers who can produce a high grade and get it harvested before bad weather lowers the grade.

Bright Spot

Another bright spot is that the soil is saturated with moisture. There is no shortage of subsoil moisture now. That may make it easier to produce a good crop than in years when subsoil moisture is scarce.

I. W. Carson, Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service cotton specialist, recommends that growers wanting to make the most of this situation should plan to use exactly the right amount of fertilizer, control weeds and grass, use recommended insect control methods, and do everything practical to make a good crop. At the same time, Carson says, the grower should be as careful as possible to make it an economical crop also.

Advance Funds For Farm Loans

Funds advanced in Louisiana for farm operating loans so far this fiscal year total, $5,312,180, F. L. Spencer, State Director for Farmers Home Administration reported.

Credit for financing farm operations is provided in both the emergency and the regular loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration.

Forty - three parishes in Louisiana have been designated as an emergency loan area because of the crop losses brought about by excessive rainfall last year.

Emergency Funds

Emergency funds in these parishes can be advanced for normal operating and subsistence expenses and where necessary, to replace worn - out equipment. The loans may include funds to pay a year's taxes and interest on debts secured by real estate and chattel property, and an amount for depreciation not to exceed 15 per cent of the value of equipment mortgaged by other lenders.

To be eligible a farmer must be primarily engaged in farming and have suitable experience and prospects for success in the farming operations he plans to carry on with the loan. He must also be unable to get the credit he needs through regular channels and have suffered a substantial loss from weather conditions.

The interest rate on emergency loans is 3 per cent. Repayment schedules depend upon purposes for which the funds are advanced and upon the applicant's estimated income. Loans to meet operating expenses are secured by liens upon crops financed and ordinarily upon chattel property.

CONSERVATION NEWS

Farm Fishponds Muddied By Rain

Recent heavy rains have made many area farm fishponds muddy, but several in the D'Arbonne soil conservation district and northeast district have remained clear.

Davis M. Baker, engineer with the soil conservationists, said that the silt-colored ponds attest to costly erosion, while the clear waters reflect better soil and water conservation.

Baker said that any good fish pond can be protected against muddiness. The most common sources of erosion are pastures which were grazed too closely, unpaved roads, bare roadsides, field borders and cropland, he said.

Stop Erosion

A better sod, with more grass cover not grazed too closely, will stop erosion in a pasture, Baker pointed out. Terracing cover crops and more crop residue turned into field soils will reduce, and sometimes stop, the washing of topsoil from these lands.

Field borders can be planted with vegetation and a pond can be protected from roadside erosion if grass cover is planted in roadway drainageways or if there is a terrace-type waterway to divert muddy water around the pond.

"Muddy ponds produce a poor poundage of fish and the life-length of the pond itself is shortened rapidly by silt," Baker said. "A pond is a barometer of erosion versus good water."

Farm ponds that are muddy can be made clear by using gypsum or aluminum sulphate. The cost of clearing muddy ponds is not excessive and the quality of the water for livestock and fish production is greatly improved. For further information as to amounts of material needed and the method of application, contact the Soil Conservation Service office in Winnsboro.

Good Fish

Herbert Banks stated that one of his ponds constructed in cooperation with the Northeast Soil Conservation District is producing a good crop of fish. On a recent trip he caught 65 bluegill bream in one hour. The pond was stocked with fish secured from the Federal Fish Hatchery at Natchitoches, La.

It is now time to start fertilizing farm ponds for better fish production. As the weather warms, fish will make rapid growth if food is available. Proper fertilization will help assure more food for the fish.

The Northeast Soil Conservation District dragline started construction of a drainage ditch on Charles Banks and W. B. Sanders' farms this week. The work was planned by the Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Conservation Program will pay a portion of the cost.

The A. S. C. office stated that April 15 is the deadline for securing Coastal Bermuda grass. Farmers interested in planting this grass should get approvals as soon as possible. The Northeast Soil Conservation District is sponsoring trucking arrangements to bring planting material to this area. Contact the S. C. S. office in Winnsboro for further information.

In spite of the bad weather, the district has been able to pile up some accomplishments during the late fall and winter season.

Dragline ditches were cut for groups headed by the following group leaders: A. B. Mayhall, Harvey Copes, Cecil Ainsworth, Bob Watson, E. A. Harper and J. B. Sumerall.

Dragline ditches have been cut for the following farmers on their individual farms: Bob Watson, Troy Gates, Alton Copes and L.C. Shelton.

The Partisan Supreme Court Bench Noticeable

The executive director of the American Judicature Society, Glenn R. Winters, has brought forward some talk-making figures. He shows that 95 out of 100 Federal judges would never have put on robes if their appointments had been made when the opposite political party held the presidency.

He shows such remarkable contrasts as Woodrow Wilson finding judical minds were Democrats 99 per cent of the time, while Warren Harding, looking over the same generation of attorneys, found that Republicans would make the best judges 95 per cent of the time.

During the last half century the least partisan President in judical appointments has been Herbert Hoover. But 86 per cent of the judges he named were Republicans.

It must be obvious both that party brand is a poor indication of judical abilities, and that we sometimes get second-rate judges because party makes so much difference in appointments.

The present appointment method also gives the public poor results when justice has to wait while a bench is vacant because President and senators, who must confirm the appointments, are of different parties. Sometimes the senators hold back in anticipation of a new President of their own party making the appointment.

Of course, Mr. Winters has a plan. It is for nominating panels of judges, attorneys and laymen who would make a short list of men qualified for appointment, one of which must be chosen by the President.

Such a method has been used for naming state court judges in Missouri about 18 years, in Birmingham about eight years and may be adopted in Kansas this year.

Members of the Missouri Supreme Court and its appellate courts are named by the governor from a list of three submitted by a panel composed of the chief justice, three men elected by the bar association and three laymen named by the governor. Circuit Court nominations are made by the presiding judge of the Court of Appeals two lawyers and two laymen.

This nominating method would be applied to the Supreme Court of the United States with an eight-member panel. One would be a Supreme Court justice, three would be attorneys named by the American Bar Association, three would be judges named by the Judical Conference of the United States (composed of judges), and six laymen named by the President.

(We wonder how many of the Supreme Court members of 1954 would have arrived by the panel method. And we wonder if a high court sifted through the panel method would have undertaken to write a school law.)

We wonder, further, how much interest the panel method will attract in Tennessee this year, when all state judges are subject to election. Few parts of government are changed as slowly as the courts. This panel method of nominating judges, for instance, has been before lawyers 40 years with only two states using it thus far.

There is one good, strong indication that it is worth attention. When it was first submitted to a vote in Missouri only 90,000 more Missourians were willing to try it than were in favor of the old method. The Legislature thought the panels could be killed by another vote two years later. That time the majority was 180,000. And after three more years the people voted it into a new constitution.

The Question Of Special Privilege

There is no doubt that the Administraton's proposed labor program has merit and is needed. At the same time, in the view of a great many people, it leaves untouched certain abuses, made possible by existing law or lack of law, which are at the very heart of the critical labor problem.

For example, National Review has pointed out that the program has nothing to say on these subjects: "A. The fact that millions of American workers are coerced into joining organizations not of their free choosing, as a condition of making a living. B. The fact that labor unions are exempt from the laws against monopoly and coercive practices that apply to all other economic associations. C. The fact that unions are privileged to use their tax-exempt incomes for political purposes prohibited to all businesses and business associations, and to all other tax-exempt institutions of any kind whatsoever."

In other words, the unions have enormous privileges that are flatly denied to all other citizens and organizations. Out of these privileges have come monopoly and, in certain instances, flagrant corruption. Every worker and consumer in this country has been penalized, whether they yet realize it or not.

The primary needed reforms are two: The right-to-work law, which gives each worker the free choice of joining or not joining a union, and the extension of the anti-trust laws to the unions. These are basic principles, and it will be a tragedy if Congress bogs down in discussing details and ignores them.

Household Anything But Orderly

By JIM BISHOP

Himself was in bed by 11. He had yelled down the hot air register for everybody to have a good time but to please keep quiet so that he could sleep. This was impossible, but his two daughters were afraid of him so they yelled up "All right, Pop." The daughters were nice. They had figures and were friendly, but they were getting old taking care of Himself.

One of them — Tessie — used to call the house Last Chance Gulch. It sat on the side of Goat Hill with its face slightly pushed in, as though the old man had tried [illegible] to nose it to the earth. Himself came up on the porch drunk one night and he hit the edge of a loose board and it flipped up and smacked him on the forehead and he passed out and swore it had been the Sweeneys, laying in wait for him.

That was long ago. The Sweeneys were friendly now, and Terry and his brother Vinnie were at the party. So were the McDermotts and the [illegible], although the Shapiro's, who owned the candy store in the valley, were always aloof and a little bit frightened at the antics of the others.

Terry was a big man. They said he was so strong that he was black and blue from blessing himself. He liked Himself's other daughter, Helen. She had black hair and big blue eyes and she wanted to go on the stage. She could sing a little, and when she sang, the old man upstairs always thought she was crying and he came running down in a bathrobe roaring for everybody to clear out.

Terry wanted to marry Helen, but he was too bashful to say it. Helen said it, but Terry always got red in the face and cracked his knuckles, so she stopped saying it. He liked the Hoolihans, but he couldn't stand the old brother, Mike. Michael was nice enough, but he had come home from the war [illegible]. It didn't show unless he had a few belts and then he began to see soldiers marching up and down Goat Hill. He was [illegible] tonight and it was only 11 o'clock.

Helen was in the kitchen making the spaghetti. She had bought ten pounds of it to make sure. Now it was boiling out of one pot and into another. Tessie was stirring the sauce and she kept telling everybody that it had taken all day to make.

Three big pots of spaghetti were going when the first platter came down steaming. Mike was at the back window watching the soldiers come down the hill again when Terry Sweeney called him an imbecile pure and simple. That did it. Tessie took a fist full of spaghetti and hit Terry with it and Helen went to Terry's rescue and pulled her sister's hair.

The Shapiros looked at each other and went behind the couch and Mike opened the window and yelled for the soldiers to come in. Vinny Sweeney told Mike that there were no soldiers out there and Mike threw an ashtray at the precise moment that Ruth Shapiro peeked over the top of the couch.

Lennie Shapiro forgot his manners and popped Mike in the nose and Helen, who was normally a peacemaker, came in with two wads of spaghetti and missed Vinny but caught Terry on the side of the head. It may have been the gin that caused it but, once it started, it needed no fuel.

Himself came roaring downstairs in a bathrobe, the eyes red with sleep, and he came through the kitchen door into the living room with his mouth open and Terry jammed it full of spaghetti. The old man wanted to order everybody out, but all he could do was growl and point to the door. Himself was in the thick of the battle, striding toward the exit when he fell over Ruth's legs, sticking out from behind the couch.

When he got to his feet, the old man was swinging and Helen tried to tell him to go back upstairs to bed, but she was yelling in his tin ear and Himself thought she was siding with the Sweeneys.

"Wait," he roared, "until your mother gets back and hears about this!"

Mrs. Hoolihan didn't get back from a visit to her sister's house until three days later. Tessie and Helen had the house clean by that time, and Himself had forgot his anger. He said not a word about the night of the big party.

"It's a strange thing," said Mrs. Hoolihan a month later. "I was in church yesterday and I opened my prayer book and a piece of spaghetti fell out."

A Great Crisis Was Imagination

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — The New York press and regional radio stations naively played up as a great crisis in the affairs of the city a calculated, engineered "strike" by the Garment Workers Union. The importance of this demonstration was absurdly exaggerated and the mayor, Mr. Wagner, with a straight face, got into the act as a diplomatic statesman who delivered his metropolis from shapeless dangers by reconciling the contending individuals on both sides. Ex-Senator Herbert Lehman also bumbled into the farce in the role of elder, giving freely, and pompously, of his wisdom, which is a comic local political phenomenon, laughed at by all who understood his role in this political mockery.

In the end, everybody in the center ring was acclaimed for imaginary feats of accommodation and public service. The only victims were the poor needleworkers, who, as usual, were manipulated in paltry mob scenes which, in this case, were harmless and almost jovial.

George Sokolsky, who is closely acquainted with the persons and the politics of this unappetizing mess, wrote a challenge to his old friend, David Dubinsky, the boss of the Garment Workers. Otherwise the inner truth of the case was not disclosed and thousands of tons of newsprint were wasted. Even Sokolsky could have told much more without lifting a phone and so could I, but only at the risk of political blasphemy. But all of us must be grateful for such as we are allowed to know about unionism these days.

In the case of the garment workers, a great special taboo has been created. Dubinsky is exalted as a man of absolutely virtuous purposes in all his official and unofficial conduct. And be it observed as a dangerous fact that the Senate committee which is warming over a few oft-told scandals, has never mentioned Dubinsky or his union except in terms of respect. I pity Jack Kennedy rather than despise the senator for flinching. I never did think he had the kind of courage to fight such an opponent.

The effect on the national economy, even the effect on the routine commerce of New York which this demonstration brought about, could hardly be expressed in any mathematical symbol except zero. It was just nothing. But the fact that New York could be so deeply aroused by a farce known to be a farce, with the mayor, Lehman and other comedians clowning in dead pan, may not be altogether lost on the rest of the country. The whole exploit set up a contrast between the personality and spirit of New York as a civic and political entity, and the state of Louisiana, for example. Or Mississippi. Or despised, ridiculed, berated Texas, whose oil and gas industry is habitually held up to scorn in New ork propaganda as something morally skin to prostitution or narcotics.

There was no excuse for the Garment Workers' strike. But if it had gone on and on to a knockout, even with blood in the streets, the result would have been better for the city of New York and for public morals and political decency across the nation than the contrived compromise that left Dubinsky smirking and still immune to serious study by any conscientious public authority.

There are no native union rackets in Louisiana, Mississippi or Texas. The few bloody uproars that have shaken those well-behaved American states have been engineered by professional union racketeers in New York and Washington. That fact is so well-known that this statement will not be challenged.

New York is achieving a sordid reputation in the rest of the United States. New York is peculiar, a strange, alien city governed by standards below those of the typical American state or city. Memories were stirred of Dubinsky's political past, or his impudent manipulation of a wholly-owned political party called the liberal party, of his arrogance toward individual needleworkers who would not meekly submit to his paternal iron will. Al Scotti, the chief deputy of District Attorney rank Hogan, concurred in the common knowledge that the "industry" is grievously infested with notorious underworld criminals.

The Senate committee will stall and evade until the presidential election. And the garment industry and Dubinsky's union will come through without loss of power. But these characteristic events in the affairs of New York are not entirely lost on the rest of the country. For that matter, they are not lost on the people of the city of New York, either. They are, on the average, as decent as average Texans.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The police manual of this city says a policeman should not charge a prisoner with disorderly conduct just because the prisoner swears at him. It's one of the experiences of being a policeman, the manual says. But if a law-abiding citizen hears the swearing, the manual continues, then it's disorderly conduct.

Army, Navy Competition On Satellites Is Good

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Sometimes the flow of news creates an impression that we as a nation are in a bad way, so to speak, when all of a sudden a tiny sphere is catapulted into an orbit around the earth, and it starts a wave of good feeling with beeps of international approval.

Now the score is Army—1 and Navy—1 — a rivalry that soon may give us even more satellites in the air. As between Soviet Russia's "Sputniks" and our own "Explorer" and "Vanguard," the score is two to two. Being even-up is a lot better than being behind. But what's more important, the scientific world seems to have begun to appreciate that American scientists are not so backward after all.

The news about Vanguard's successful flight into space comes at a time when Washington has been in the doldrums over the recession as well as over the alleged improprieties surrounding the Federal Regulatory Commissions. Virtue is supposed to be struggling to emerge as against the invisible peddling of improper influence designed to sway decisions in some governmental agencies.

Maybe the congressional investigations will assist in a broad sense the cause of righteousness. But the methods being used to attain such a laudable objective are still subject to severe criticism. Take the case of Colonel George Gordon Moore, whose chief "sin" seems to be that he is related by marriage to President Eisenhower — they married sisters.

The colonel, it seems, was accused by a variety of innuendoes and smears, leaked out from the House committee. He was supposed to have assisted in some way in getting the Federal Communications Commission to issue a television license to an airline with the officers of which he had at one time done some business. He denied this unequivocally under oath, saying he had never contacted directly or indirectly anyone at all at the FCC or anybody else in the government about the airline's application for a TV license. He said he was not personally acquainted with any member of any regulatory agency whatsoever in the federal government on behalf of anyone. He volunteered his testimony. He said he had submitted his files to the committee investigators beforehand.

Instead of examining in executive session all the various rumors and inferences concerning Colonel Moore's alleged activities and coming forth with an explicit statement that Colonel Moore had nothing to do with the pending case, some members of the congressional committee during a period of nearly three weeks had allowed the harmful impressions to continue to prevail through ambiguously worded comments, repeatedly casting doubts on the propriety of his activities and implying that maybe he had been guilty of some irregularity in connection with the Federal Communications Commission. It seems as if some people will try almost anything in order to get in a dig at Ike or his family.

This sort of thing was condemned as improper procedure during the hearings on Communist activities just a few years ago, but somehow the same critics, notably some of the more outspoken organizations in the field of civil liberties, seem to have had nothing to say about the bandying-about of Colonel Moore's name in this flagrant example of alleged "guilt by association."

In these days of expediency on the political and ideological fronts, it is refreshing, therefore, to turn to a statement that is an example of courage and forthrightness. It comes from a United States senator, Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Democrat. He is noted for his common sense as well as his indifference to political gobbledegook. He wrote a reply the other day to Dr. Joseph Link, Jr., associate professor of economics at Xavier University in Cincinnati, who had asked the senator what he thought of the suggestion that apart from any official "Summit" Conference, Khrushchev be invited to come to America for a visit. Senator Lausche said, in part:

"The impact upon our allies and friends would be prejudicial to our cause. They would be justified in believing that an intimacy was being developed between the free United States and Communist Russia that would lead eventually to the abandonment by the United States of the free peoples.

"Motivated solely by a desire to preserve itself, there has been no change in the Soviet concept that, by the very nature of things, communism cannot exist so long as there lives in the world any governmental unit ruling under a philosophy inconsistent with that of communism.

"I am convinced that the attitude of Khrushchev and his cohorts will not be changed through the contact that he makes with our way of life, with our governmental officials, and with our people. To him, the visit would be a tactical operation, believing that he could not influence the people of the United States toward communism, but that through the visit, he could undermine the trust and the confidence which the free people of the world have in our country."

Just why so many Americans want to see our highest officials fraternizing with the men of the Kremlin who have on their hands the blood of the Hungarian patriots is difficult to understand, particularly in a country dedicated to high ideals and where the slightest impropriety in our own governmental circles is pounced upon as a violation of public morals.

More On 'Message Of Freedom' Put Out By RFE

By FULTON LEWIS

WASHINGTON—In further study of the "message of freedom" which Radio Free Europe is beaming behind the Iron Curtain with your truth dollars, I have picked, at random, another script to Czechoslovakia by Mr. Ferdinand Peroutka.

Mr. Peroutka is the great brain in top command of all Czech broadcasts and he himself does a 15-minute stint, each Sunday night, from headquarters in New York City.

The essence of this one is that the Czechoslovakian people are misunderstood by the free Western world, in connection with their recent warm welcome of Nikita Khrushchev when he visited Prague, and a defense of their passive acceptance of communism as their way of life.

He tells them that they cannot hope for any help from the free world, in their dream of liberalism."

"International communism," says Mr. Peroutka, "has been forced to recognize the right to an individual road to socialism."
tion, but that, by some gradual opinion, their communist dictators evolution and pressure of public will be induced into "revision-

Just what benefit the captive people of Czechoslovakia are to derive from this line of propaganda, is not clear, but it is very clear that Mr. Peroutka considers socialism as the goal of the Czechoslovakian people.

Except for the warning that no help is coming, there is no message of any kind from the free West in the entire quarter-hour spiel.

It is essentially a rationalization of why the Czechs cheered Khrushchev, after Poland and Hungary had revolted against him and other captive peoples—Yugoslavia, Finland and East Germany greeted his arrival on their soil with massive and icy silence.

In regard to Hungary and Poland, Peroutka says, the revolts were gallant and imaginative, but unsuccessful. In order for revolt to end in victory, he says, it must be timed in perfect synchronization with favorable events in the outside world. Upon this premise, Mr. Peroutka says the following to his Czechoslovak listeners:

"The gallant Hungarians have certainly, for the time being earned more glory than the rational Czechoslovaks, but one must admit to one question: who has judged the international situation more accurately?"

The question is obvious sophistry.

What Mr. Peroutka ignores is that the Hungarians undertook a physical revolt, in clear knowledge that they were begetting bloodshed and death. They recognized the price to be paid, and paid it many times over. Justifibly or not, they expected help from the free world and such help never came, but they were willing to mount the physical assault, even at the risk of death.

There were no such considerations in the case of the Czechoslovakian people in Prague in their reception of Khrushchev. Every other country he had visited among the Iron Curtain satellites had received him in icy hauteur. Mr. Peroutka himself quotes a "cosmopolitan newspaperman" in the following eye-witness report of the Khrushchev-Bulganin arrival in Yugoslavia:

"Have you ever seen a crowd, 100,000 strong, standing absolutely motionless?

"It is not only that nobody cheered, but as the Russians stepped out of the station, there was not even the normal stir which you expect when the crowd sees what it has come to see . . .,

"The people remained absolutely quiet, they simply stared at the emerging procession . . . it was one of the greatest shows of effrontery in the history of international diplomacy."

So the Czech people in Prague also could have greeted him without fear of any possible reprisal or punishment. There was no po [illegible] of blood, as in the decision Budapest. But the Czech peop cheered.

Mr. Peroutka argues that th was because Khrushchev had Stalinized Russia and sent Mo tov into exile. The cheers for h were a reproach of their own g ernment.

Mr. Peroutka's Sunday eveni "message of truth" is, in sho that the Czech people should n dle their government into cha ing from its present form, not ward Western freedom, but towa Khrushchev's communism. Pri one truth dollar per minute, advertised.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

THE HEALTH of pregnant woman may be reflected in her offspring. This is true if infection occurs or she needs iron or thyroid. A British physician believes illness and stress during pregnancy also effects the development of the child and his health during infancy.

These conclusions were reached after comparing the answers given by the mothers of 102 retarded and 450 normal children concerning their mental and physical condition during pregnancy. Sixty-six per cent of the mothers of the retarded and 30 per cent of the mothers of the normal youngsters had been sick or harassed at some time during their pregnancy.

What kind of illnesses were encountered by the mothers of the retarded youngsters? None had German measles but 12 had toxemia of pregnancy. The others suffered from rheumatic fever, asthama, peptic ulcer, heart trouble, or other disease.

Emotional upsets occurred in 33: nine had matrimonial problems, seven a rift with relatives, and in 12 the husband or another child died or was injured or ill. There were seven instances of eviction threats, nine survived shocks or accidents including bombings, and 13 became so disturbed they were treated by psychiatrists.

Mental retardation occured i the offspring and more than one half showed signs of poor healt during the early months of life. They were under par in many respects and seemed to lack resistance to the hazards of infancy. They failed to gain weight or were subject to nutritional or respiratory diseases; 15 per cent ha congenital malformations.

Not all illnesses and shock during pregnancy are followe by dire results. Other studie have revealed, for example, tha many women get sick durin pregnancy but the majority hav normal babies. It is difficult t explain this discrepancy excep that the mothers of backwar progeny search carefully into th gestation period to find a caus If the baby is normal, they min mize or forget any distressin events that occured during pregnancy.

Gradual Thaw Creates Slush

By UNITED PRESS

A gradual thaw turned towering snows into slush in the storm battered East today, and weathermen kept a wary eye on approaching rain clouds for fear they might trigger major flooding.

Weathermen said heavy rains which doused the Lower Ohio Valley Sunday night could touch off flooding in the snow-buried Northeast and central sections of Pennsylvania if it spreads across the state "with any intensity."

The rain storm pelted Malden, Mo., with more than four inches of water since Saturday night, and more than three inches at Paducha Ky., while Baton Rouge, La., was soaked with nearly three inches since Sunday.

Drenching rains also hit northern California during the weekend, claiming at least one life when a 7-year-old girl drowned in a rain-swolen creek in South San Francisco.

The rain aso sent a huge mud slide crashing down on Albany, across the bay from San Francisco, nearly burying Mrs. Anna Edvalson in her bed. Her husband pulled her to safety.

The great flood danger in the East was contained in the huge amount now locked in the heavy snows covering much of Pennsylvania, the Mid-Atlantic states and New England.

A sudden thaw or heavy rains could unleash torrents of floodwaters across the East. Although temperatures were expected to climb into the 40s in Pennsylvania and the Mid-Atlantic states today, weathermen said a sudden thaw appeared unlikely.

However, there was a slight chance of heavy rains as the disturbance in the Lower Ohio Valley pushes eastward today into the Upper Ohio Valley and most of the Middle and South Atlantic states.

Most main highways were open to traffic, but drifts ranging up to 15 feet still blocked some secondary roads.

Generally fair weather prevailed over the Upper Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes states. Below freezing temperatures ranged over night from the Great Lakes to New England and south into northern Virginia. Near freezing readings were reported in most of the western Plains south to the Texas Panhandle.

Weathermen predicted scattered showers today over much of the West with freezing drizzle likely in western Nebraska and Kansas.

Woman Lived With Skeleton In Apartment

CHICAGO (AP) — A 55-year-old woman who lived for months—perhaps years—in a rubbish-cluttered apartment with the skeleton of a dead man kept her bizarre story to herself yesterday.

The weird discovery was made by detectives who forced their way past the woman, Teresa Janisch, Saturday and searched the second-floor apartment where Nicholas Craven lived until he dropped from sight about three years ago. Craven was about 80 years old.

To get to the room where Craven's skeleton was found Detectives James Markham and Peter Woods had to pass a door on which was a crude sign scrawled in red pencil: "Keep out. Stealing or be killet. I warn you." The first-floor windows were completely boarded up and a steel grate was at the front door. There was no gas, electricity or plumbing in the littered living quarters.

Wrapped In Sheets

Craven's skeleton—wrapped in dusty sheets—was found on a sofa, one of two pieces of furniture in the South Side apartment. Neighbors told police Craven had lived in the house for 30 or 40 years. The coroner's office sealed the house, and took the detectives' grisly find to the morgue. Mrs. Janisch, who speaks some few phrases of English was held in the detective bureau where she refused to talk.

Police were called into the case Wednesday by an assistant pastor of a Catholic church, who said a friend of Craven's related that he had not seen the elderly man for three years. Authorities said that for the time being they are as-

INDONESIAN WAR

Victory Claims Raise Outcries

SINGAPORE (UP)—A series of government victory claims in the Indonesian rebellion touched off a wave of anti-SEATO feeling in the Indonesian capital of Jakarta today.

Indonesian student groups announced they would hold mass anti-SEATO demonstrations Tuesday in front of the United States, Australian and Philippine embassies.

Anti-Americanism was on the increase, and U.S. Marine guards at the U.S. Embassy had been alerted for possible trouble. The last major demonstrations were against the Dutch.

At the same time the pro-nationalist newspaper Merdeka asked U.S. Ambassador Howard Jones to try to get the U.S. Seventh Fleet to leave Singapore. A cruiser and two destroyers are standing by there if needed to remove any Americans from embattled Sumatra.

The anti-SEATO feeling blossomed as the government reported major victories in Sumatra and as Singapore observers said the loyal troops appeared to be gradually crushing the rebellion.

An army communique reviewing the first 12 days of fighting said the government had carried out its major objectives — occupation of the big oil centers, securing main highways and "finally the entire mainland of east central Sumatras."

It said Caltex tankers were now navigating the Siak River and that Caltex and Stanvac operations were back to normal. At the same time the Indonesian navy denied "foreign reports" two Indonesian warships were sunk in the Siak River and one in Padang waters.

A United Press correspondent reported from rebel headquarters at Bukkittinggi the rebel cabinet met in emergency session to discuss the worsening military situation.

The rebels were particularly concerned with arrival of ten Russian-manned ships and reports Egypt and Yugoslavia were sending motor torpedo boats to help the Jakarta forces carry out their blockade of rebel ports.

EPIDEMIC HITS TOWN

Nurse Describes Virus-Flu Fight

OCRACOKE, N.C. (AP) — "They just go down. Lots of times, one member of a family can get up before the last one goes down. Otherwise, the neighbors help.

"They kept the school open up to Friday but they kept dropping out and dropping out 'till there wasn't anybody there.

"It's pitiful, I tell you."

That was how Mrs Kathleen Bragg, Ocracoke Island's public health nurse, described on Sunday the vicious virus-flu epidemic which has hit 60 per cent of the island's 400 to 500 residents.

Caught Flu

Mrs. Bragg, a registered nurse, is this isolated little fishing community's only medically trained resident. She herself caught the flu shortly after it broke out 10 days ago and hasn't been able to leave her house since Monday.

"I went just as long as I could go. Then I started contacting people by phone and sent their medicine by messengers. I have a practical nurse here and she's been giving shots to the worst ones."

Mrs. Bragg said some people were "mighty sick" but no one has died.

She said antibiotics were given only "when really necessary — when we thought they might go into pneumonia."

HOUSTON CHANNEL

U.S., Norwegian Ships Collide

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An American tanker and a Norwegian freighter collided at the 5-mile pass in the Houston ship channel early today.

The two ships were grounded on a sand bar after the crash and the channel was blocked for three hours.

The channel was choppy from a northwest wind, but visibility was clear, a navigation district spokesman said.

The Coast Guard said the two shipe were refloated and channel traffic resumed.

An oil slick covered the water after the crash. Fireboats from Houston and two Coast Guard vessels from Galveston were dispatched to the scene.

No injuries were reported. Damage apparently was slight.

However, after the ships were refloated, they steamed away on their scheduled destinations.

The tanker, Sinclair's Albert E. Watts, carrying 120,000 barrels of oil products, headed for Galveston. She is bound for the East Coast.

The freighter Milross, carrying general cargo, resumed her trip up the channel toward the long reach docks.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the two ships collided in a "glancing blow."

Each vessel's crew list includes about 40 men.

The Watts, 10,907 tons, left Houston about midnight.

The Milross, 8799 tons, was inbound. Her last port of call was Lake Charles, La.

"SERIOUS"

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), a former college economics professor, offered these definitions Sunday:

A depression is "a decline of major proportions"; a recession is "a decline of less than major proportions." What we're in now is "a serious recession."

TASTE IN DECORATING

In the last analysis, interior decorating or design involves what pleases you most. While there are basic elements of interior decorating that should be followed, the best-planned decor is the one that pleases the homemaker who must live with it. One of the most important elements in home decoration is easy maintenance. That is why such materials as ceramic tile are becoming increasingly popular throughout the home. Ceramic tile is famed for its lifetime durability, but it is also an easy surface to keep clean.

THREE SUICIDES A DAY

TOKYO (UP)—The Kyodo News Agency said today 164 families committed suicide in Japan during the first two months of 1958, an average of three a day.

CALIFORNIAN DIES IN ITALY

VENICE, Italy (UP) — American tourist Gil Lavern Noyes, 53, of Palos Verdes, Los Angeles, died of a heart attack in his sleep at a hotel here Sunday.

James Pays Tribute To High Standard Employes

Shown above is the staff and workmen at James Machine Work who keep the wheels of industry rolling in the Monroe trade area.

H. M. James, owner, says in tribute to them, 'it is through the cooperation, hard work and skill of my employes that the James Machine Works enjoys such a high standard of excellence in the performance of maintenance work for industry in this area.

'We serve Northeast Louisiana industry and have done so for about a quarter of a century. The industries, large and small, depend on us to keep their plants going, their production at full speed.'

James specializes in all types of industrial maintenance, from welding in the field via a mobile unit always ready to move out at a moment's notice, to tank building and metallizing.

James can build tanks of most any dimension and size, for any purpose. And in their metallizing work — a process of rebuilding damaged parts of machinery, James can save you money in the most practical way. In metallizing, you spray atomized metal on damaged machinery parts, returning them to their original size. It can be sprayed on any kind of metal, and the object being metallized is not damaged as would be the case in welding.

Both light and heavy industry find the James Machine Works the perfect shop for maintenance. The reason is simple: James has skilled crews for skilled jobs.

Call them for general machine work, expert welding, and the above mentioned specialties. You'll find James Machine Works a good firm to do business with.

Russians Visit Zoo In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Soviet atomic scientists visited the Brookfield Zoo yesterday—at their request because they said they had heard of it in the Soviet Union.

The scientists asked zoo attendants to see "something that smells very badly." They were shown a skunk. They talked with excitement when they heard the rattle of an American diamondack rattlesnake.

The scientists from Moscow University, Victor Spitsyne, I. T. Aladyev and S. V. Mamikojan, came to Chicago last week to attend the 1958 Nuclear Congress.

Appeal Planned For Frank Palmer

FRANKLIN, La. (AP) — Defense lawyers will file Wednesday for a new trial for 16-year-old Frank Palmer, found guilty in the Sept. 29, 1957 shotgun saying of Morgan City policeman Ruble Robicheaux.

The jury's verdict Saturday specified without capital punishment. It carries a sentence of life in prison.

Robicheaux was sitting at a police department radio set when struck by the shotgun blast fired through a window. The coroner listed cause of death as shock as a result of the shooting.

Police Chief Aubrey Deslatte of Morgan City testified Palmer told him he shot Robicheaux because of alleged mistreatment of Palmer's mother in the city jail. Mrs. Pamer had been booked on a drunk charge.

Teen-Agers Ran Out Of Racy Film

LAKE CHARLES, La. — UP — Police moved in Sunday and swept out all teen-agers from the Pitt theater where the French film, "And God Created Woman," was showing.

Sam Tarleton, commissioner of Public Health and Safety, ordered the police into the theater after parents of under-aged children who had already seen the movie complained it was "salacious." The theater is owned and operated by a New Orleans company.

Among the minors asked to leave were 24 children under the age of 12. One 23-year-old man was arrested and charged with interfering with a policeman when he attempted to eject the man's 19-year-old wife from the movie.

Police said the theater management should protect youngsters from such films. The management posted an "Adults Only" sign out front.

'Planned Revival' Set By Methodist Church In April

JACKSON Miss. (AP)—Wells Memorial Methodist Church, which held a 23-night spontaneous revival, will have a "planned revival" late in April.

Rev. H. T. Landrum, 34-yearod pastor, told of the plans yesterday after the spontaneous revival ended.

The revival began March 1, Landrum said, when some of his congregation members felt the need to tell how they needed God. It continued each night until yesterday.

"We felt we had reached all the people we could reach and some of our people were getting physically exhausted," he said. "As the pastor, I'm completely exhausted myself."

Services at the 300-seat church, Landrum said, made it the focal point for revivals for several other Methodist churches here, but they, too, ended their services in recent days.

On two occasions, the revival went around the clock, with 24-hour prayer services.

The Rev. Marvin Osborne, a Methodist evangelist in Wilmore, Ky. and student leaders from Asbury College at Wilmore, joined the Wells Memorial congregation in the revival.

'Flying Friar' To Appeal Conviction

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — A leader of Italy's "Flying Friars" says he will appeal his conviction on charges of disturbing a Communist meeting. He was sentenced to eight months in jail.

The Rev. Tomaso Toschi was convicted of creating a public disturbance at nearby Fano last year after he tried to answer criticism of the Catholic Church by a Communist candidate for municipal office.

CALL CENTRAL SIGNS

Always Consider Safety Factor

Central Signs, Inc., owned by Kent Babb, has the most modernistic of neon lighting equipment, including the largest crane for installation purposes in north Louisiana. By "modernistic" we mean in the fullest sense — top-flight gear for doing the work, the most practical, and above all, the safest.

The safety factor is something no businessman should overlook when considering the erection of a sign, particularly when it involves an area adjacent to another building, as would be the case in downtown Monroe. This area, incidentally, has several outstanding examples of Central Signs work — Gay Clothing and Belk Gallant, to name two.

With the safety equipment of Central Signs, you can leave them to their work without fear of damage either to your property or others.

Kent Babb invites all interested persons to consult Central Signs first before installing any neon lighting. They will advise you on the type sign best suited for your type of business and location.

Highway bulletins are also on sale or rental basis at Central Signs. Dial A 2-6578 and talk to Kent Babb. He'll help you and save you money, too.

Whitten Scores Ike's Proposal On REC Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Whitten (D-Miss), chairman of the House agriculture appropriations subcommittee, has criticized President Eisenhower's proposal that rural electric cooperatives obtain needed funds from private sources rather than the government.

The criticism came to light yesterday with release of the transcript of recent hearings. Whitten contended that among other things the plan could result in handing over the rural electric cooperatives to private utilities.

Kenneth L. Scott, agricultural credit services director, disagreed with Whitten.

Whitten said buyers of debentures rather than the government would hold a first lien on property of the cooperatives.

"If private utilities bought the debentures," he said, "and the borrowers should be in default you and the secretary would be turning over this great business of $3,600,000,000 to the private utilities."

Scott finally admitted under questioning it would happen under the proposal.

NOT REALISTIC

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—MGM had some real gold ore mined at Kingman, Ariz., and shipped here for use in a movie. When it arrived, prop men gave it a good spraying with gold paint because "it didn't look real."

Dag Begins Parleys With Red Bosses

MOSCOW (AP) — U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold begins a series of meetings with Soviet leaders today. He said he expects no specific results but regards the discussions as "important in themselves."

Hammarskjold is expected to remain in the Soviet Union through Thursday. He almost certainly will meet with Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev.

On arrival by Soviet airliner, he told newsmen he had "no comment at all" and turned down a request to greet the Soviet people over Moscow radio because he saw "no point to that."

The Swedish diplomat told newsmen in Helsinki that disarmament probably was "of the greatest interest among the topics" he would bring up in Moscow, although he expects no definite results. He presumably will try to persuade Soviet leaders to return to the U.N. Disarmament Commission.

The Soviets have refused to participate in the 25-member group because Western nations outnumber the Communist states. Soviet proposals for a summit conference also will probably be discussed.

Denies Girlie Mags Cause Of Delinquency

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Juvenile Court Judge Francis J. McCabe says he has not seen any evidence in his court that pornographic literature and "girlie" magazines have contributed to juvenile delinquency.

He told a meeting of the Congregation Sons of Abraham the court has evidence that poor upbringing emotional problems and physical and psychological problems are more responsible for delinquency.

UNION RACKETS PROBE

Conclusions Of Inquiry Revealed

WASHINGTON (UP) — Conclusions of the Senate Rackets committee:

1. "There has been a significant lack of democratic procedures in the unions studied...Constitutions have been perverted or ignored... The rank and file member has been shorn of a voice...Use of the secret ballot has been denied."

2. "The international unions surveyed...have flagrantly abused their power to place local unions under trusteeship..."

3. "Certain managements have extensively engaged in collusion with unions...They have paid off to obtain inferior contracts which impose substandard working conditions..."

4. There has been widespread misuse of union funds...Financial safeguards have been woefully lacking...Reports to rank and file members have often been false... The misuse, including outright thefts and 'borrowings' for personal profit, has totaled upwards of 10 million dollars...$5 out of the pocket of every member of the unions covered."

5. "Violence in labor - management disputes...still exists to an extent where it may be justifiably labeled a crime against the community...These acts...have often been committed by top officers of local unions, or by goons and thugs...Higher union authorities have looked the other way..."

6. "Certain managements and their agents have engaged in a number of illegal and improper activities...using labor spies...reprisals against employes..."

7. "The weapon of organizational picketing has been abused ...used...as a device to extort funds from management..."

8. "Gangsters and hoodlums have successfully infiltrated some labor unions, sometimes at high levels...have assumed positions of trust...exercised sinister influences over other union officials..."

9. "An extensive 'no man's land' in labor-management relations has been uncovered...Some employers have had no access to either the National Labor Relations Board or any comparable state agency."

10. "Law enforcement officers have been lax in investigating and prosecuting acts of violence ... Some ... have shied away ... because of fear of offending either side..."

11. "Members of the legal profession have played a dubious role in their relationships with officials of some unions...have indulged in unethical practices debasing to the standards of their profession."

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: You preach that man has an immortal soul. The Bible says that only God and Christ have immortality. How, then, can man have an eternal soul? V. P.

ANSWER: I think you should read the Bible a little more carefully. The Bible says, referring to redeemed men; "Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." (Luke 20:36). Again, "And whosoever liveth and believeth in me Shall Never Die." (Jo. 11:26). The word immortality means "deathless" or eternal. The Bible again s[illegible] "But now is made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality through the Gospel." (2 Tim, 1: 10).

You can destroy your body, but you cannot kill your soul. "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." (Ec. 12:7).

Inherent within most of us is the belief that we are immortal. "I feel in myself the future life," said Victor Hugo. "I have never seen what seemed to me an atom of proof that there is a future life.' wrote Mark Twain. "And yet I am strongly inclined to expect one."

"Some morning you will read in the papers," Moody told a group of friends, "that D. L. Moody is dead. Don't believe a word of it. At that moment I shall be more alive than I am now. I was born of the flesh in 1837 — I was born of the Spirit in 1856. That which is born of the flesh will die; that which is born of the Spirit shall live forever."

Butler Charges Recession Got Out Of Hand

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, said today, "This second Eisenhower-Nixon recession was deliberately planned as a 'readjustment,' but got completely out of hand."

Butler said the administration applied "the brakes when the train had already slowed down." As a result, he said, the country is in a "full-blown recession."

Now, he added, the administration has finally been persuaded to move "and actions which the Republicans were condemning just a few weeks ago as 'panic' are now being put forward as examples of Republican responsibility."

Butler's remarks were in a speech prepared for Ohio Wesleyan University's student assembly. He replied tartly to a speech by Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn before the same group last Friday.

Alcorn had accused the Democrats of wanting to spend federal funds "at random" to combat the recession. He also said they fired a "massive publicity barrage of professional pessimism to shake confidence" in the future.

"Democrats are by nature optimistic," Butler said, "but we are also realistic; we are not fatuous enough to believe that by ignoring crises and pretending that they do not exist that they are somehow going to go away."

Butler said the country can lick the economic downturn "if we but act resolutely, but it is going to take action, positive action, and not just talk."

Pro-Segregation Bill Expected To Have Opposition

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) Constitutionality of a bill authorizing donation of public funds to pro-segregation citizens councils is expected to be challenged on the House floor this week.

A bill which passed the Senate last week, with only two dissenting votes and with no arguments on its merits, would authorize the donations.

The measure was expected to be considered in the House today or tomorrow.

Rep. George Rogers Jr., of Warren County told a Vicksburg civic club last week "the bill is clearly unconstitutional and could be used to promote the political interests of various groups."

Some other House members also were known to oppose the bill.

Under the bill, cities and counties could donate up to $100 per million dollars of assessed valuation. Although the measure does not name the citizens councils, Sen. Hayden Campbell of Jackson made clear to the Senate the councils are intended to receive the money. Campbell is the bill's author.

The councils' records are not open to public inspection. The bill does not call upon the receiving organizations to account for how the money is spent.

The Senate was expected to work today on a House-passed bill designed to protect white dominance of the ballot box. Both chambers set 2 p.m. for reconvening after the weekend recess.

The bill would take the function of registering voters out of the hands of the elective circuit clerk and put it in the hands of a registrar appointed by the chancery judge.

The registrar would have an attorney to advise him and could call in the sheriff for his proceedings. He would not accept registrations for more than five days a month.

Gov. J. P. Coleman had warned the legislators the elective circuit clerks often are not lawyers and are not prepared to prevent "unqualified voting" — obviously by Negroes — under the civil rights law.

The registrar bill passed the House last week without dissenting vote and with no arguments on its merits. Like election laws already on the books, it makes no reference to color. Backers did not come out openly on the floor with the bill's purpose. Coleman has warned the lawmakers that legislative journals can be used in court to show the legislature's intent, even though the law itself makes no reference to race.

Negro Mother Held For Killing 6-Month Infant

BATON ROUGE — UP — A 25-year-old Negro mother was held today on a charge of murdering her six-month-old son Saturday during a fit of anger.

The mother, Bessie Lee Curry, told police the baby died after she shook it violently during a fit of anger. The baby was an invalid, paralyzed from the waist down.

Police officers said the woman was hysterical when they arrived at her home. She told officers her husband, Leon Curry, left her about a week ago. She said she had no food and no money, and the baby had had only small amounts of milk since her husband left.

Dig For Clues In Mike Todd Crash

GRANTS, N.M. (AP) — Heavy earth-moving equipment churned into a muddy mountain valley today to dig for clues to the cause of the crash which killed producer Mike Todd.

"The plane hit at an awfully steep angle — practically straight down," said Phillip Goldstein, investigator in charge of the Santa Monica, Calif., office of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Some persons theorized that the crash may have been caused by icing, which pilot Bill Verner, 45, had reported only a few minutes before the plane went down Saturday. Some pilots on the scene said it appeared that only one engine was working when the Lockheed Lodestar — the Lucky Liz — smashed into the ground and exploded.

Wreckage was scattered over half an acre. One engine and other portions were buried deep in a fused mass.

Identification of Todd's remains were made in a telephone comparison of dental charts by an Albuquerque dentist and Todd's New York dentist, Dr. Samuel Pritz. The remains of screen writer Art Cohn, 45, were identified by a money clip he carried.

An associate of pilot Verner and copilot Tom Barclay, 34, identified them.

Goldstein said his preliminary examination as yet could not support the icing theory until a further study of weather conditions was made.

He said it would be necessary to tear down the engines and propellers to determine finally whether engine failure might have been a factor.

After the last chunks of the plane are dug up and examined, the CAB crew will travel to the New Jersey base of the plane for the customary check of maintenance records and pilots' histories.

Business Briefs

Steel mills are finding that the auto industry has been replaced by construction as their leading customer this year, Steel magazine said. Revaluation of automotive requirements for steel indicates this year's output may be as low as 90 to 95 million tons. But the magazine said steelmakers look for a gradual uptrend all year in production.

Aluminium Ltd., looks forward to a continuation of over-capacity in the aluminum industry until world markets can be expanded to absorb increases in production, its annual report said. However, the company said it expects to develop new uses. Capital expenditures last year totaled 180 million dollars, the report revealed and should total 200 million dollars this year.

Republic Steel Corp. announced it will reopen its Clyde coal mine at Frederickstown, Pa., April 2 because of "dwinding coal stocks." The mine, down since the first of the year, employs 500. A.O. Smith Corp. and Armco Steel's Sheffield division directed 440 men to return to their jobs. U.S. Steel Corp. was said to have laid off 1,000 workers in Chicago. But it said it has called back 300 West Coast employes since November.

National AAU Basketball Showdown Set Tonight

McNeese Will Open Tilt With Milwaukee

By ROBERT MOORE

DENVER (AP) — The big showdown for the 1958 National AAU basketball championship opens here tonight with star-studded teams from Lake Charles, La., and Milwaukee colliding in the curtain-raiser at 8:30 p.m. (EST).

Most of the tourney's 24 clubs will keep a close eye on the Lake Charles outfit which will lay a 19-game victory streak on the line against Milwaukee.

A year ago, Lake Charles, led by sharp-shooting Bill Reigel, upset Denver 73-52 in second round action. The Louisianans, composed mostly of former McNeese State aces, are a stronger squad this year.

Tonight's other games send Brownstown, Ind., against Amarillo, Tex., at 10:30 p.m. (EST) and Los Angeles against Cincinnati at midnight.

The 61-year-old tourney's eight seeded teams, headed by Bartlesville, Okla., won't see action until Wednesday's second round. Wichita, co-champion with Bartlesville in the National Industrial Basketball League, is second-seeded.

Then come Denver, the defending champion U. S. Air Force All-Stars, Peoria, Seattle, Akron and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Bartlesville makes its debut Wednesday at 9 p.m. against tomorrow's Milford, Conn.-U. S. Marines winner. Second-seeded Wichita, paced by dependable Dick Boushka, runs up against tomorrow night's victor in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa-Salt Lake City scrap Wednesday at 5 p.m. performer in last year's tournament as sparkplug of the champion Air Force squad.

This year's battle for individual honors is expected to be the keenest in AAU history. An all-star squad will be chosen from the tourney standouts for a six-game tour of Russia in late April and early May.

Tomorrow's first round pairings: (times Eastern Standard)

4 p.m.—Kansas City vs. Philadelphia.

5:30 p.m.—Milford, Conn., vs U S. Marines.

8:30 p.m.—San Francisco vs Detroit.

10 p.m.—Cedar Rapids, Iowa, vs Salt Lake City.

11:30 p.m.—U. S. Navy vs Fort Collins, Colo.

Annual NCAA Swim Meet At Ann Arbor

By JERRY GREEN

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Swimmers from 54 schools assemble here next week end to shoot at host Michigan's mastery in the 35th annual NCAA meet.

The three-day meet begins Thursday and lasts through Saturday. Saturday's final events will be televised nationally by CBS at 3 p.m., EST.

The defending champion Wolverines are favored to repeat last year's victory.

Michigan, the newly crowned Big Ten champion, is expected to receive most of its competition from Yale. Neighbor and arch-rival Michigan State likewise could cause trouble.

Ohio State, Michigan and Yale are the only three schools ever to wear the NCAA water crown since team titles first were awarded in 1937.

The Buckeyes, who are subpar this year following an NCAA probation period that forced them out of last year's meet, have won the most, 10. Michigan has won 7 and Yale 4.

Solid individual strength will be shown by Oklahoma, a sleeping giant that's starting to stir and splash.

Michigan posesses defending champions in Dick Kimball, a double diving winner last year, and Cy Hopkins, victor in the 200-yard breaststroke in meet record-breaking time. It also has world record holder Dick Hanley in the 220-yard free style.

The Wolverines also have a stout sophomore in Tony Tashnick a Big Ten triple champion, and point-amassing secondary strength.

"Yale is the only team I fear," said Michigan Coach Gus Stager. "We have a champion or potential champion in nearly every event. Michigan State could surprise, but we beat them in the Big Ten and a dual meet during the season."

Robin Moore of Stanford is expected to take over again in the 50-yard freestyle after missing last year's meet due to an injury. Moore is world record holder in the 100-yard freestyle.

Other outstanding individual performers are entered from Harvard, North Carolina, Washington State, Brown, and Iowa.

TV ROOTERS — The close battle for the National Invitational Tournament championship 650 miles away kept these Xavier University students in a long siege of suspense yesterday in Cincinnati. In a tense moment before the TV set are Tom Frain, left, and Frank Bradley, who were among the 100 students watching the game on the campus. Xavier's overtime victory over Dayton University gave them something to cheer about. (AP Wirephoto.)

$25,000 INVESTMENT

White Sox Hoping Jackson Will Show

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

Manager Al Lopez is hoping the Chicago White Sox finally will get some dividends on the $25,000 they invested in first baseman Ron Jackson in 1954.

That year, the Sox snapped the 6-foot-7 Jackson off the Western Michigan campus. They've been sitting back waiting for something to happen since.

In 1955, he got in 40 games and hit a paltry .203. In 1956 he appeared in 22 games and hit .214. He spent last year with Indianapolis and hit .310 with 21 home runs and 102 RBIs. He also struck out 110 times, high for the American Assn.

But Lopez and the rest of the Sox brass think Jackson may have arrived.

The Sox licked the Cincinnati Redlegs 14-5 at Tampa yesterday and Jackson clouted two home runs, each good for three runs. Tito Francona also drove in half a dozen runs on four singles.

That the teams are beginning to get to the shakedown stage is indicated by the fact that both Lew Burdette, who won three games in last year's World Series, and Bob Lemon, who had not been to the mound since last August, tested their arms.

Burdette went three innings for Milwaukee in the Braves' 4-0 shutout over the Pittsburgh Pirates and didn't permit a batter to reach base. He also doubled home the first run.

Lemon, who underwent an elbow operation last November, went two innings for the Cleveland Indians B team, which turned back the Chicago Cubs' B squad 10-1.

He was nicked for an unearned run on three hits and reported his arm felt fine.

In other action, the Cubs' regulars defeated the Indians 10-8 at Tucson; the San Francisco Giants toppled the Baltimore Orioles 8-5 at Phoenix; the New York Yankees overpowered the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-6 at Miami; the Kansas City A's splattered the Washington Senators, 7-1 at Orlando; the Detroit Tigers, whitewashed the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 at St. Petersburg, and the Boston Red Sox nicked the Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 at Clearwater.

Rookie center fielder Don Taussig broke a tie with Baltimore when he doubled with the bases loaded in the eighth, breaking a 5-all tie and giving the Giants their triumph.

The Yanks collected five runs in the eighth inning, four on Bill Skowron's grand slam home run, to whip the Dodgers.

AHL Calder Cup Playoff Wednesday

By UNITED PRESS

Providence will be at Hershey and Springfield at Cleveland Wednesday night when the American Hockey League's Calder Cup semi-final playoffs get under way.

The Reds wound up the regular season on Sunday with a rousing, 6-1, victory over the fourth-place Indians; the second-place Barons shaded the champion Bears, 5-4; and the fifth-place Rochester Americans downed the last-place Buffalo Bisons, 6-4, in other season finales.

The second game of the best-of-seven series between the Reds and Bears also will be played at Hershey, on Saturday, March 29, while the next two are scheduled for Providence, March 30 and April 2.

The Indians-Barons series, also best-of-seven, stays in Cleveland for the second game, March 29 before switching to Springfield for the next two, March 30 and April 2.

Celtics Virtual Eastern Champs In Cage Group

By UNITED PRESS

The Boston Celtics are virtually "in" as Eastern Division playoff champions in the National Basketball Association, but a stunning upset has halted the St. Louis Hawks' attempted runaway in the Western Division.

The Celtics took a 3-0 lead in the Eastern finals Sunday by trouncing the Philadelphia Warriors, 106-92, as big Bill Russell set a probably playoff record with 40 rebounds.

But St. Louis, which had opened the Western finals with a pair of three-point wins over the Detroit Pistons, was handed a 109-89 beating on its own home court Sunday to cut its series lead to 2-1. George Yardley paced the Piston triumph with 31 points, 17 in the first quarter. They meet again Tuesday at Detroit.

Carter Leads Spatafora To League Lead

By CASEY JONES

Ernest Carter proved once again he was the leading bowler as he led the Tom Spatafora Grocery team to the number one spot in the Pioneer League. Carter unloaded a mighty 236 game, backed by a 602 series.

Spatafora's also took the high team's single game with a count of 1,091 pins and the team's high series with a total of 3,030 pins.

Chavis Floor Co., with Bill Bryan doing some fine bowling for the boys, made a clean sweep of their four points from Roi Tan Cigar. Bryan hit a 220 game, backed by a 578 series. Herman Gulledge was top man for the Roi Tan boys with a 195 game, backed by a 474 series.

Ouachita Security Life Insurance also swept their four points from the News-Star—World. Malta showed a 187 game and Lefty Danna got a 515 series to lead the insurance boys. Boyett went all the way for the newsboys with a 176 game, backed by a 469 series.

Fink's Men's Wear and Schlitz Beer split their four points at two each. Sonny Durham shot a 225 game, while Tommy Higgins threw a 562 series to lead the Fink boys. T. J. Canizaro had a 209 game and Lyn Morrow posted a 536 series as best for the Schlitz boys.

Tom Spatafora Grocery and Carter bested the Bowling Center three points to one. Carter shot a mighty fine 236 game, along with a nice 602 series. Lefty Ed Villa led the Bowling Center boys with a 211 game and a 581 series.

Xavier Team Returns In Rare Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP) — Only two fans saw them off 10 days ago. They were pelted with derisive snowballs by their classmates.

But the basketball team of Xavier University found things a lot different when they returned in triumph from New York yesterday with the National Invitation Tournament championship.

A crowd estimated at up to 10,000 persons stormed the Greater Cincinnati Airport and made things so difficult for officials, there was some doubt the team's plane could land.

The team got a horn-blowing, police-escorted parade from the airport through the streets of Cincinnati to the Xavier campus.

At the campus there was a noisy, cheering reception at the school's fieldhouse. The team even had a chance to heave a few snowballs—symbolic ones of paper—back at their classmates.

Even Coach Jim McCafferty, the only one who believed his team could go anywhere at the tournament, said dazedly, "I'm afraid I'll wake up and find out it's all been a dream."

Xavier had left for the tournament with a lackluster 15-11 record.

It ran through four upsets, winning the championship Saturday with a 78-74 overtime victory over Dayton.

Predicts Proviso Will Be Attached To Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R-NH) predicted today Congress will attach to the $3,942,000,000 foreign aid bill a provision directing increased domestic buying of mutual assistance supplies.

International Cooperation Administration officials contend 85 per cent of the over-all total now is spent at home. Bridges and Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) say that percentage may hold for military purchases. But they said that unless there is a change in policy about 35 per cent of nearly a billion dollars in economic aid will go for purchases of supplies and equipment abroad.

"I think congress is alert to this situation and will do something about it," Bridges said. "I don't think we will have any difficulty in attaching a provision to the foreign aid bill directing more expenditures at home, particularly in labor surplus areas."

Bridges said he thinks the mutual security program is "in for a rough time" in Congress.

Soon-To-Be Dad Nervous—It's His 12th Child

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The sympathetic nurse at St. Mary's Hospital here watched the soon-to-be father pace nervously up and down, smoking.

He poured a cup of coffee and spilled most of it.

"This is your first I guess," the nurse said kindly.

"No," was the startling reply from John Suntrup, 40, "It's my 12th. But I guess you never get over being nervous."

In addition to Peter, who arrived today, the Suntrups have eight boys and three girls.

Kluszewski Is Key To Pirate Team Success

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UP)—Danny Murtaugh believes his Pittsburgh Pirates can move into the first division in the National League this season if big Ted Kluszewski can come back.

Kluszewski's big bat, added to that of Frank Thomas, would give the Pirates one of the best one-two long-ball punches in the league and they have plenty of other hitting potential to go along with it.

But, as usual, the Pirates' over-all pitching picture is not a bright one and Murtaugh admits that is the one department which has him worried. His hurling thins out after starters Bob Friend, 14-18 last season; Ronnie Kline (9-16) and Vern Law (10-8) and relief ace Elroy Face (4-6).

Determined to Come Back

Kluszewski, bothered by a bad back the past two seasons, is determined to come back, not only to help his new club but also to show his old one, the Redlegs, that they made a mistake in letting him go. Ted has had a special heavy corset made for his back and hopes that will help. His back doesn't bother him at the plate, but hampers him in the field.

If Ted can make it, it will free Thomas, who hit .290 last year with 23 homers and 89 runs batted in, probably for third base.

"I can play Thomas at first, third, right or left field," Murtaugh explained," "But I hope Kluszewski will do the job at first. Of what I've seen of him so far, I'm optimistic."

If Kluszewski makes it at first and Thomas at third, the Pirates could wind up with four .300-hitting infielders, or Dick Groat, who batted .315 last year, will be at short and the slick-fielding Bill Mazeroski at second.

The Pirates also have a hard-hitting starting outfield trio. It will be Bob Skinner in left, Bill Virdon in center, and Roberto Roberto Clemente, with one of the best arms in the business, in right.

Mejias, Powers Look Good

For infield utility duty, Murtaugh has Gene Baker, Gene Freese and Johnny O'Brien. Roman Mejas, who hit .275 in 58 games with the Pirates last season, and rookie John Powers are available for outfield reserve duty. Murtaugh is high on both of them. Powers hit .294 for Columbus in 1957.

Hank Foilers will be the No. 1 catcher with Dick Rand and Dan Kravitz back of him.

Don Gross, obtained from the Redlegs with whom he won seven and lost nine last season; Bob Smith, who won only two while losing four with the Cardinals and Pirates in 1957; and two rookies, George Witt and Bennie Daniels, are being given shots at starting roles. Witt won 18 at Hollywood last season; Daniels' mark was 17-8.

Luis Arroyo, with a 3-11 mark last year, will be the left-handed relief pitcher with Don Williams, who was 15-6 with Lincoln last year, also given a chance to make the bullpen brigade.

"BEST BET"

Burdette Hasn't Lost Hurling Art

By JOE SARGIS
United Press Sports Writer

Lew Burdette, the Milwaukee Braves' "best bet" in the 1957 World Series, hasn't lost a bit of the pitching skill that mesmerized the New York Yankees last fall.

The tall right hander from Nitro, W.Va. faced batters for the first time this year Sunday after a long holdout siege and made only 25 pitches in racking up three hitless innings at the expense of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Burdette faced only nine batters and allowed only one batter to hit the ball out of the infield in pitching the Braves to a 4-0 victory over the Pirates.

Skowron Hits Grand Slam

Meanwhile, the Yankees, led by big guns Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron, rallied for five runs in the eighth inning to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 9-6. Skowron belted his third homer of the spring, a grand slam, to highlight the rally, while Mantle accounted for his fifth round-tripper in the third inning.

The Chicago White Sox, who are going to need all the extra-base hitting they can get out of a line-up dominated by singles hitters, coasted to a 14-5 win over the Cincinnati Redlegs with Ron Jackson driving in six runs on a pair of homers. The win, the White Sox' eighth, snapped a three-game losing streak.

Tigers Down Cards

Shutout pitching by Frank Lary and Hank Aguirre and Bob Lemon's first test of the spring after an arm operation brightened the hopes of the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians somewhat.

Lary worked seven frames and Aguirre the last two as the Tigers downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-0. Lemon hurled two innings while testing his salary wing in a "B" game against the Chicago Cubs, won by the Indian "B" squad, 10-1. The Cubs varsity, however, built up an 8-0 lead early and went on to score a 10-8 victory in the second game of a twinbill at Tucson, Ariz.

Elsewhere the San Francisco Giants defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 8-5; the Boston Red Sox scored two runs in the seventh inning to shade the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-3, and the Kansas City Athletics buried the Washington Senators, 7-1.

Gridder Dies Of Apparent Heart Attack

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Don Wayne Wilson, 21 who starred as a guard of the University of Texas football season last season, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack.

Relatives said Wilson complained of not feeling well after a fishing trip this morning.

He was stricken at the home of a brother, Bill Wilson, another former Texas player. Bill found him gasping for breath and summoned an ambulance. He was dead on arrival at Brackenridge Hospital.

While doctors said Wilson apparently suffered a heart attack Justice of the Peace Frank McBee withheld an inquest verdict pending an autopsy.

Wilson had earned three letters in football and was a senior at the university.

The Tonic for Sick Accounts

The man had been courting the old girl for years, and she had forsaken the proffered love of all others for his attentions alone. But somehow the old boy never got around to popping the vital question.

Finally in desperation the lady informed her friend that her patience had reached its limit.

"Either marry me or stay away from my door," quoth the long suffering bachelor-girl.

"Dear," replied the chided one, "you must realize that ours is just a platonic affair."

"It may be play to you but it's tonic to me," retorted the lady. The old boy saw that she meant business so he got down to brass tacks and popped the question.

There are many "platonic affairs" in business. Creditors just play with some of their slow paying customers and never put tonic in their credit accounts. Now if you are suffering from sick accounts we have the right prescription.

BASILIO - ROBINSON

Physicians Ordered Into Ring To Check Coagulants

CHICAGO (UP) — Ring physicians have been ordered to climb into the corners Tuesday night during the Carmen Basilio-Sugar Ray Robinson title fight and prevent the use of any forbidden coagulants on face cuts.

Chairman Frank Gilmer of the Illinois State Athletic Commission made that disclosure today and added, "It will be the first time in boxing history for such preventive action."

Drs. Irving Slott and John Pribble will do the policing during this return 15-round match at Chicago Stadium in which 36 or 37-year-old Robinson tries to recapture the 160-pound crown from 30-year-old Basilio.

"We are doing this to prevent any possible repercussions in case either fighter suffers face cuts," Gilmer explained. "We believe that the managers of Basilio and Robinson have been making mountains out of molehills with their shouts about cuts, but we're taking no chances."

George Gainford, acting manager for Robinson, twice asked Gilmer during the past week to prevent Basilio's handlers from using a blood-stopper that allegedly contained chloroform and that, when rubbed from Basilio's salved brows onto Robinson's nose during clinches in their fight last September, "almost stupified and blinded him."

Sugar Ray appeared today as a 9-5 underdog in the betting.

Promoter Jim Norris reported an advance sale of $275,000 and said, "we're still shooting for $400,000, but I'm beginning to doubt that we'll make it."

Tickets for the local showing of the Basilio - Robinson fight are still available at Dew Music Company in Monroe and Sol Snyder's Toggery in Bastrop. The closed television coverage will be shown on a theatre - sized screen at Neville High School beginning at 10 p. m.

Writer Wonders If Basilio May Be Defeated

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—The road show of "Carmen" goes before a tough second-night audience in Chicago Tuesday night.

The first time around, they rewrote the script. Carmen, instead of being tragically "moidered", startled the demon drama critics by winding up in a walking position.

There is a suspicion here that they'll get back to the original theme this time and Carmen will end up on the deck.

Carmen, of course, being Carmen Basilio. And the role of Don Jose, who in Bizet's tragic opera does Carmen in with all the finesse of Murder, Inc., will again be played by that gladitorial Thespian, Sugar Ray Robinson.

Originally Four Acts

The bit about the gypsy who toyed with Don Sugar Ray's feelings originally was written in four acts. The last time it went 15 and, while this was longer than anticipated, there is a feeling here that Don Jose Robinson will pull the stiletto this time around about the seventh act.

Reviews of the premiere by this cast as usual gave Carmen the best of the going. When last presented at the Met, by less muscular if more articulate and prettier professionals, the drama critics wrote:

"On a canvas crowded with movement and colorful personalities, Carmen was the dominant figure."

This held for the first amateur night show at Yankee Stadium last September when Carmen of the Basilios held perfectly to the script as far as making a bum out of Don Jose Robinson. But then the plot went all haywire and Carmen copped the Duke, all of which must have come as a great surprise to Escamillo, the toreador who all down through operatic history has seen his beloved Carmen take the count.

Quite a Reversal

No report is available on how the elite of the diamond horseshoe took this history-making and precedent-shattering upset. But to the lads who fill the bronze horseshoe at Dempsey's it was quite a reversal of form.

Things won't be entirely as written, even if Don Jose Robinson gets the opera back to normal by lowering the boom on Carmen.

In Bizet's original, the artful aria which brings down the house is the "Toreador Song." The melody this time will be the "Cash Register Calypso." Some afficionadocs suggested that this was the underlying theme the last time and that Don Jose Robinson was so enthralled with the obligato that he felt obliged to withhold the accepted coup de grace which usually removes Carmen from the opera house premises.

One thing can be said for certain. Carmen likes the new way the opera ends and will struggle manfully to keep from going back to the hackneyed finale of old.

New Approach To Railway Issue Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — A new approach to an old problem — how to get efficient commuter service at a reasonable cost — is to be tried by Westchester County, N.Y.

County authorities, after long years of fighting commuter rail fare increases, hope to draft a plan to keep public transportation from collapsing.

Westchester, locale of some of the lusher New York City suburbs, is served by two railroads — the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the New York Central.

Both railroads claim they lose millions on commuters every year.

In the past Westchester County has opposed before public regulatory bodies all petitions by the railroads for fare increases.

Now, however, the county is setting up the Westchester County Committee on Commutation. Its task is to draw up a plan to perpetuate public transportation.

Alfred Sulla Jr., who introduced the resolution before the County Board of Supervisors, says, "We are trying to set up a different atmosphere. Instead of fighting the railroads, we are treating them as fellow sufferers. Maybe we will come up with the answer, maybe we won't."

What avenues of approach are open to the committee?

County Atty. Harry Herman, one of the committee members, suggests several:

1. Help the railroads to modify laws, federal and state, which treat the lines as monopolies. Herman says they no longer are. Management, he says, may need more flexibility in running the railroad.

2. Give the roads some type of assistance. This might mean tax forgiveness by the municipalities. Or it might mean a subsidy.

3. Set up a regional authority, such as the Port Authority of New York, to run the lines. This, Herman says, is a last resort.

The railroads, possibly stunned by the new attitude, are cautious. Central officials say they'll be glad to meet the committee, and one such meeting has been held. The New Haven says it will cooperate with the committee in every way.

This area dominated the class AAA and AA girls all-star teams with 10 players on the triple-A first team and eight on the AA honor roll. Only one player from this area, Ouachita's Lanny Johnson, made the class AAA boys all-state. Johnson, district 1-AAA's leading scorer, made the second team.

Three area stars made the AA boys first team and one landed on the second team. The class A all-state had three players from this section of the state on the first team and three on the second while four area girls made the A first team and three the second team.

Adolph Kupp Vows Not To Retire Soon

By DON WEISS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —No, friends, Adolph Rupp's not planning to retire as Kentucky's basketball coach just because he got that "next" National Collegiate title he begrudgingly vowed to get six years ago.

For one thing, Rupp is a healthy virgorous 56.

"Hell, I'm as young as you guys," he blurted out when the question of retirement was put to him.

For another, time apparently has healed the hurt he felt when the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. suspended the Wildcats from competition for the full 1952-53 season as an aftermath of the infamous basketball scandals.

Rupp now says he was misquoted in reported statements that received wide circulation at the time. In fact, after whipping Seattle 84-72 for his fourth national championship Saturday night, he took special care to praise the NCAA.

"They've treated me and Kentucky very well," he said.

He did, however, vow back in 1952 to bring his Wildcats back to the top of the nation's basketball powers before calling it a career.

Now he has done it with a club he didn't think had much of a chance even as late as two weeks ago. Already he is looking ahead to No. 5.

"I have no intention of quitting. Maybe sometime we can win another," he said.

For his 29th Kentucky season, Rupp will have to draw heavily on a new sophomore crop to make up for the loss of nine of this year's 13-man squad. Hot-shooting Johnny Cox, a junior, is the only regular back, but the Baron also has a dandy in 6-7 Don Mills, a sophomore who played extremely well in the second half Saturday.

His new champions are unlike the star-studded Wildcats who NCAA titles in 1948, 1949 and 1951, making up with scrap and clutch play what they lacked in over-all talent.

"Folks who are supposed to know thought so little of us," Rupp said, "we figured we would just come up here to sell programs."

Temple won third place, defeating Kansas State 67-57.

Five Records Set, Two Tied At Track Meet

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Five records were set and two tied as host Byrd raced to its sixth consecutive tri-state high school track meet victory Saturday.

Byrd compiled 94 points. Texarkana, Ark., was second with 62½ points, followed by Haynesville, La., 29; Bossier and Plain Dealing, La., 23 each; Fair Park of Shreveport, 21½; and Tallulah, Jonesboro-Hodge, Springhill, Neville of Monroe, North Caddo of Vivian and Haughton.

Springhill's Dayton Baker set a record in the 440-yard event, racing the distance in 4:49.7 two seconds under the record set in 1940 by Billy Hudson of Plain Dealing.

Hayden Hicks of Byrd won the half mile in 2:20.5, breaking the record of 2:03.1 set in 1955 by Bastrop's Ronnie Johnston.

Wayne Olds of Fair Park surpassed his own record in the mile, covering the distance in 4:36.5. He had set the previous record of 4:38 last year.

Byrd's relay teams accounted for two records, winning the 880-yard event in 1:31.9 and the mile event in 3:30.15. The old 880-yard mark of 1:32.6 was set by Byrd in 1954. Plain Dealing had set the old mark of 3:31.8 in 1939.

Texarkana's Gary Brown tied the meet's oldest record when he won the 220-yard dash in :22.7. Claude Strahan of Summerfield set the mark in 1929.

In the broad jump, George Tedford of Byrd turned in a 21-5¾ performance, tying the mark set in 1951 by Charlie Anderson of Plain Dealing.

Palmer Captures St. Pete Tourney

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Arnold Palmer shook off his "runner-up jinx" in convincing fashion when he came from behind Sunday to win the $15,000 St. Petersburg Open golf tournament by one stroke with a birdie on the final hole.

The brawny Latrobe, Pa., professional knocked six strokes off par for a 65 that gave him a winning total of 276 for 72 holes, worth $2,000.

Although he won four tournaments last year, Palmer had been unable to break into the victory column this winter, finishing second in two events and third in another.

Tied for second at 277 were Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., the third-round leader, and Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex. Both Palmer and Finsterwald, playing together, had to catch Hawkins, who vaulted into the lead with a closing round 66. Finsterwald matched Hawkins' total with a 70.

Leo Biagetti, St. Paul, Minn., took fourth money with a 69—279.

Then came Bill Casper, Apple Valley, Calif., with a 280 and Bo Wininger, Odessa, Tex., at 281.

Tied with 282s were Mike Deitz, Lake Orion, Mich., and Don Fairfield, Casey, Ill.

Defending champion Pete Cooper, Lakeland, Fla., finished far down the list with a 293.

H. Humphrey Facing Two Here Tonight

Mountainous Happy Humphrey takes on two wrestlers at once and Louisiana heavyweight champion Bernard Hodgemyer has a busy night at Kallio's Arena here tonight.

The 750-pound Humphrey will meet Karl Karlsson and Hodgemyer in an hour and 15 minute special event that'll draw the big part of an anticipated capacity crowd. The bout will be a one-fall affair. A tag match will provide the main event entertainment while a 10-minute fray will open the card.

Hodgemyer will see action in the opening match against Bill Barney or Phil Brummett, then pair with Karlsson against Humphrey and, if still able, take part in the tag match.

Hodgemyer will select his own partner for the main event. They will face Barney and Brummett in a 90-minute limit, two-falls-to-win engagement. Hodgemyer and Mr. X lost to Barney and Brummett in last week's main event, a rowdy affair that saw all four grapplers, the referee and a visiting wrestler engaging in a free-for-all at the end.

Karlsson, former Scandinavian champion, tried to pin Humphrey by his lonesome last week and had the big boy fall on him. The big Swede survived but decided tackling Humphrey was not a one man job and asked for some help. He picked Bad Bernard to help him this week.

The matches will start at 8:15 tonight with the doors to open at 7. Customers will receive a ballot at the door and be asked to vote between five wrestlers for a title opponent for Hodgemyer. Promoter Gus Kallio is letting the fans choose either Charley Laye, Barney, Brummett, Jack or George Curtis to meet Hodgemyer for the Louisiana heavyweight championship.

Loy Scarborough will officiate tonight's matches.

Must Educate According To Times--Wendt

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The grade school children of today will be the citizens of the vastly changed world of tomorrow — and they must be educated accordingly, a noted scientist-teacher declared yesterday.

"We now have in our schools the citizens of the 21st century," Dr. Gerald Wendt declared. "It would be a grave mistake to educate them only for the 1960's, or even for the year 2000."

Wendt, a former science professor and now president of the UNESCO publication center in New York City, was the opening speaker at the annual convention of elementary school principals. He drew this picture of the brave new world of tomorrow:

Trips to the moon will be commonplace excursions by the year 2000. Man will live at least 10 years longer than he does today, and the last 20-30 years of his life will be spent in leisure. The average work week will be cut to 30 hours or less, giving man more free time than he has ever known.

"Man is in the grip of powerful social forces," Wendt said. "We must look ahead. The pace of research will continue and social change will accelerate."

In the 21st century, he said, "the business of earning a living will be only a minor function. Learning to live will be the most important part of man's life.

"Perhaps man will be forced to revalue the very idea of work itself. There are many other things for human beings to do beside work — or even think. With more time at his disposal, man will turn more and more to recreation. This will in turn bring a thirst for spiritual and cultural education."

Wendt said four basic factors will bring about the fabulous changes that are inevitable in the next century:

The million-fold increase in power, wrought by the breakthrough into the heat of the atom;

Man's entry into space, first with satellites but soon with space platforms and actual manned flights;

The increase in longevity by victory over disease, particularly of the virus type, and the conquest of time through electronic developments and automation.

TO COUNTER REBS

Batista Warns Of 'Total War'

HAVANA (UP) — Cuban President Fulgencio Batista warned Sunday he will take whatever measures are necessary to counter a rebel threat of "total war" after the end of next week.

Batista called a news conference in the Columbia Army Camp to denounce last Monday's ultimatum by rebel leader Fidel Castro as "arrogant."

Castro has called on all Cubans to stop paying taxes after April 1, and has given the Cuban armed forces until April 5 to lay down their arms or be considered "traitors."

Batista said there is "no doubt" in his mind that Castro's "26th of July" movement is "oriented or inspired by Communist ideology" because it resorts to "violence, blood, death and destruction," which are "the system and method used by the Communists."

Batista said his government is willing to grant a general amnesty to its opponents prior to the general elections he has postponed until November. But he said he would do this "only if the opposition shows good faith."

He said he opposes "foreign intervention in the domestic affairs of Cuba" but would welcome supervision of the elections by the United Nations or the Organization of American States "if the opposition so asks."

Former Mental Patient Kills Dad, Gives Up

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UP) — A former mental patient, who police said resented his father because he had fought against the Germans in World War I, shot and killed his father and then meekly submitted to arrest.

Police said William J. Stoveken, 37, sat in a chair in the family home Sunday afternoon and fired three bullets into the head and neck of his father, William C. Stoveken, 62, while the elder man napped on a nearby couch.

Police quoted the son as saying he bore a grudge against his father for serving with the American Army in the World War I. The Stovekens are of German descent and police said the son told them he felt his father had betrayed his nationality.

The son also said he believed his father was holding him back in life but did not elaborate. The son was unemployed, and the father was a used car manager for a Green Bay auto dealer.

Police said the younger Stoveken had purchased a .38 caliber revolver last December and had been using it for target practice.

Mrs. Stoveken was in the kitchen of their home when the shooting occurred. She ran to a neighbor's home and called police.

Authorities arrested the younger Stoveken without incident.

The Stoveken's had moved into their home last October when the father took his son from a Michigan mental institution. The son also served a term at the Jackson, Mich., State Prison on a theft conviction, police said.

Clergyman Chides Rocketeers For Pinning Of Medal

WASHINGTON (UP) —An Episcopal clergyman chided Navy rocketeers Sunday for putting a religious medal in the rocket which hurled the Vanguard satellite into orbit for purposes of "divine guidance."

The Rev. Dr. Charles D. Kean, rector of Epiphany Church, said that using the St. Christopher medal as a good luck charm was "blatantly superstitious." He said the action "caricatured" the Christian faith and affronted many people.

He added in a sermon that the incident was on a par with the wartime practice of giving testaments and prayer books to departing soldiers "not so much that they be read, but in order that they ward off bullets."

A Navy spokesman confirmed that a small medal of St. Christopher — venerated by Roman Catholics as the patron saint of travelers—was bolted to the gyroscopic guidance apparatus of the Vanguard rocket's second stage.

He said no such medal was included in the first two Vanguard rockets which fizzled, dealing the United States a propaganda setback and handing Navy morale a sharp blow.

The spokesman said the "change order" which added the religious medal to the Vanguard originated with the Martin Co., contractors for the project. It was approved by a Navy official.

The clergyman said "a great many people" felt the Navy might as well have assigned a man to each stage of the rocket launching process "to cross his fingers and say, 'muggles.'"

Trischool Plan Will Be Featured In Teacher Drive

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Women from Vassar and Smith colleges will come to Yale University next fall in a trischool program to recruit future teachers for secondary schools.

The program, run by Yale University here, will be open to qualified students of the three schools at the end of their junior years.

Undergraduate Yale is traditionally an all-male school. But there have been a few coed students in music, art and nursing courses in past years.

Yale President A. Whitney Griswold, who announced the plan Sunday, said the students will study academic subjects and education in their first year here, then become apprentices in teaching at New Haven area schools during their second year.

They will receive teachers' pay. The women will live in a Yale graduate women's dormitory.

Griswold said the plan "will enable the three participatnig colleges to make a major contribution to the needs of our public schools."

He said the plan unites two elements that are "strongest and most necessary in thet raining of secondary school teachers—namely, solid competence in the academic subjects and equally solid competence in the art of teaching, acquired through actual classroom apprenticeship."

Doctor To Stay Another Year On Tangier Isle

TANGIER ISLAND, Va. (AP) — "We are very happy," say residents of tiny Tangier Island these days.

"I am happy also," smiles Dr. Mikio Kato.

Mrs. Hilda Crockett, owner of the Chesapeake Bay island's hotel, explains it this way:

"For almost three years, the island searched for a doctor. Then Dr. Kato traveled 8,000 miles to the island from Japan and said he's stay a year. That was last April.

During that time, he's become one of the islanders. He married Sue Crockett, a member of the oldest family on the island, but no one knew whether they'd stay.

Dr. Kato has announced his decision: Yes, at least for another year.

Hopes Dim For Fruitful Summit Talks

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

While the trek to the "summit" is now well under way, no one seems very hopeful of reaching any positive agreements at the meeting.

September is being suggested as the probable time and Geneva, Switzerland, as the probable place.

But the United States and Russia are engaged in a long-drawn-out exchange of bickering communications and statements on the forthcoming conference.

Wants Preparatory Meeting

The bickering involves both the extent of preliminary diplomatic preparation for the "summit" meeting and the issues to be discussed when the meeting is held.

The United States insists that either through a meeting of the "Big Four" foreign ministers — the United States, Britain France and Russia—or through ordinary diplomatic exchanges, a substantial basis of agreement should be reached in advance.

In taking this position, the United States wants to make sure that Russia really desires to reach agreements on big world issues, not simply to use the summit meeting as a propaganda medium.

Limited To Details

For a long time, Russia rejected completely the proposal for a foreign ministers' meeting. Now it agrees that such a meeting might be held. But it insists that the foreign ministers should discuss only the details of organizing a summit meeting.

If this limitation were imposed, it would mean that the summit conference would be held without any insurance of success.

There is considerable suspicion that this is what Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Leader Nikita S. Khrushchev really want. That is, that they have no intention of trying seriously to reduce world tensions but hope to make the conference a valuable setting for tub-thumping speeches.

President Eisenhower can hardly be expected to relish the idea of taking part in any such spectacle.

Trial Opens In Cancer Death Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Trial opened in U. S. District Court here today on a woman's suit seeking $779,500 from two of the country's largest tobacco companies.

Mrs. Victoria St. Pierre Lartigue, formerly of Franklin and now living in Houston, Tex., claims the firms' products caused the death of her husband who died of lung cancer in July, 1955.

Mrs. Lartigue's petition claimed that tobacco products made by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co. caused the lung cancer in her husband.

In her suit, Mrs. Lartigue said since their marriage in 1917 her husband smoked two or more packs of cigarettes produced by the firms.

FORGER SENTENCED

ALEXANDRIA — UP — William A. Myles, 31, was sentenced Saturday to seven years in Angola state penitentiary on five counts of issuing bad checks in the Alexandria area. The man was captured near Alexandria a week ago today. District Judge Walter N. Hunter sentenced him.

King Kong Keller Now In Horse Breeding Business

By JOHN CHANDLER

FREDERICK, Md. (AP)—"Here I am — come on over," a voice boomed from beyond a neat white fence.

It was Charlie (King Kong) Keller, one-time slugging outfielder of the New York Yankees, crouched low and tinkering with a tractor at his new horse breeding farm in the foothills northwest of this town famed for Barbara Frietchie. Appropriately enough, he's named the layout Yankee Land Farm.

Keller, a Maryland farm boy who made good in the majors, now is facing one of the biggest gambles of his life — breeding trotters and pacers.

He retired from baseball in 1951, but went back as a Yankee coach last June when Bill Dickey became ill, and remained through the World Series.

"We put in 1200 fence posts last spring before I left to join the Yankees," he said.

"They wanted me to return, but I couldn't," he said. "anyway, I like this better, and if I go broke—" . . . the words trailed away.

Charlie has another spread, only 12 acres with a house and barn a mile away where he started breeding standard breeds three years ago.

Then he had a chance to buy what is now Yankee Land, almost 100 acres with a dilapidated pre-Civil War house, old slave quarters and a large but beat up barn.

Investing thousands, and with most of the reconstruction work done by himself anl family, Keller now has a fine red-brick showplace. Parts of the house and adjoining slave quarters, both of log cabin construction, now are rebuilt in a modern, comfortable home. The barn has 14 spick and span stalls for brood mares. He owns 10 mares, plans to have at least four more.

Keller is breeding exclusively for the market, "although I may keep an occasional filly to race myself."

He has two fillies, one named Gay Yankee, who was the fifth ranking 2-year-old money winner in 1957 and winner of the Bloomsburg (Pa.) Fair trotting stakes.

"I'm coming back to New York with Gay Yankee and plan to start her in the $20,000-added Dream Trot at Roosevelt Raceway in June," he said.

She also is staked at Ocean Downs, Md., Lexington, Ky., Arden Downs, and Kent & Sussex, Del.

Gay Yankee's daddy, Titan Hanover, won the 1945 Hambletonian, and Keller bought her for $4,000 at the 1956 Harrisburg yearling sales. She won almost $20,000 last season.

In a nearby paddock frisked an unraced 2-year-old named Proud Yankee, a daughter of Star's Pride.

Proud Yankee — all of Keller's horses have Yankee in the name—cost $2,300 as a yearling, but suffered an injury and won't race this year.

His trainer-driver is Joe Eyler, who has a farm and training track at Thurmont, Md., about 17 miles away.

Keller said he always was interested in horses, but leaned to the trotters after watching Eyler drive at the Frederick Fair.

"I was born and raised on the farm, and so I decided on breeding horses. I got past the age when I wanted to tie into a herd of dairy cows and milk them twice a day."

Charlie sold hin first three yearlings last fall at Harrisburg for $5,700 and will send five more there in November.

"If I'm lucky, I'll have eight for 1959—but there's so many things that can happen to them."

Keller, who joined the Yankees in 1939 a year after being graduated from the University of Maryland, belted more than 30 homers for three seasons and had 186 during his career. After playing with Detroit in 1950 and 1951 he retired, his career shortened by removal of a spinal disc after the 1947 season.

Married in 1938 to Martha Lee Williamson, the Kellers have three children, Charlie, Jr., 18; Donald, 17; and Jeanie, 15. The boys, both baseball and basketball players, helped Frederick High win the 1957 state championship. Charlie, Jr., is a freshman at Maryland, and Donald is headed in that direction.

Wife To Soon Track Hubby By Telephone

WASHINGTON (UP)—Head for the hills, men. It is only a matter of time before your wife will be able to track you down by pocket-size radio telephone.

Gleaned from government scientific reports, this sort of thing may be happening come 1970 — maybe before.

Joe Soak, on his way home from the office, stops in the neighborhood tavern to hoist a few before joining the little woman and the kids for the evening meal.

Joe is on his fourth cup of cheer when a badget in his coat pocket buzzes two longs and a short. Mournfully, Joe fishes out what looks like a small, so-called "pocket" transistor radio receiver of today.

He punches a button and gives forth a quavering "hello?"

"Joe, you pull your lead feet right out of that joint and get yourself home or so help me I'll come down to that saloon and drag you out. The pot roast is getting cold and I've got to go to mother's right after - - -"

"But honey lamb, I'm not at the tavern. I'm standing up on the bus. We're just crossing Jackson Avenue so I ought to be at our stop in about 10 minutes."

Click at her end. Click at Joe's. He lives only a block away, so that gives him time for another cup before he sprints home to his dearly beloved.

Dr. Allen V. Astin, director of the National Bureau of Standards, made possible this peek into the future. He told how it was now possible "to design small man-portable radio telephones."

Due to the limited number of transmission channels, a partly line type of selective ringing will be necessary. Astin's scientists say this is entirely feasible and that development of the portable radio telephone is under research in several commercial laboratories.

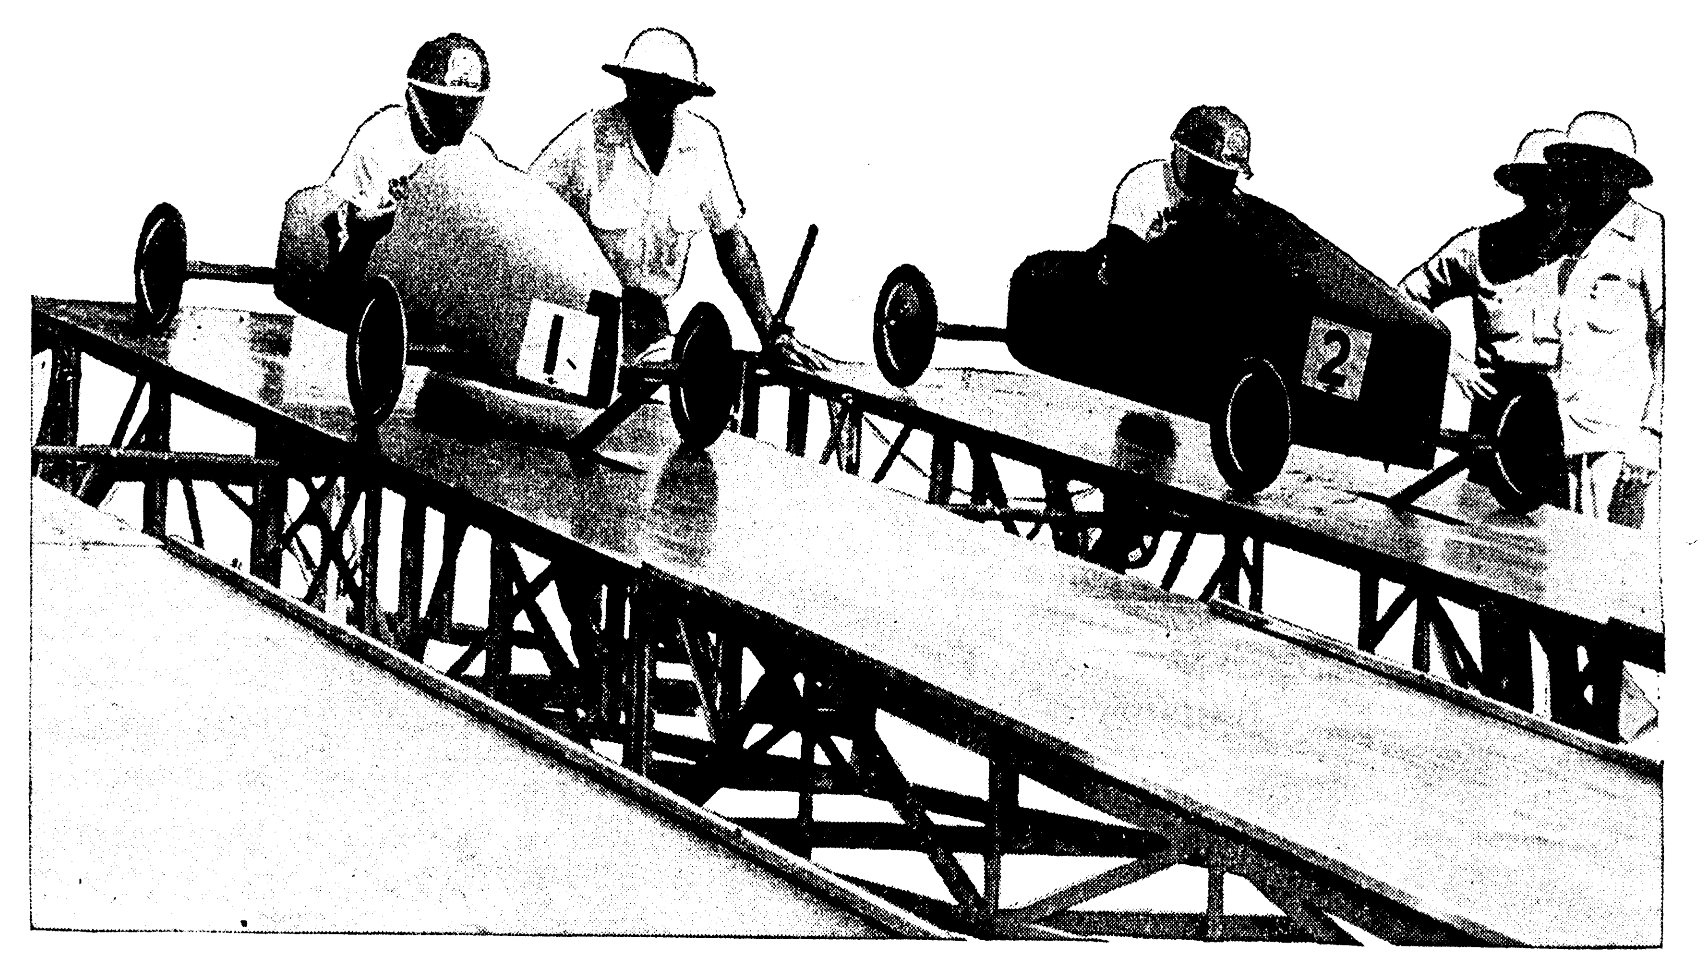
Rarin' to Go!



We at Southern Bell are ready, willing and eager to go ahead with a new telephone expansion and improvement program badly needed in Louisiana. But we are held back because Telephone Company earnings are restricted to such a critically low level.

This new construction program would mean more money in circulation all over the state, more jobs and take-home pay, increased Telephone Company tax payments and local purchases—a recession-fighting stimulant to the state's entire economy.

More than that, it would mean:

1. Continuing improvements in service for those who already have telephones;
2. New telephones for thousands of people now being seriously handicapped for the lack of service.

A reasonable telephone rate increase will enable us to do the job. The increase will amount to just pennies a day more for you and your neighbors.

Telephone Earnings in Louisiana are

- Lower than any major public utility in the state
- Lower than any Bell System company in the entire nation
- Lowest of the nine states served by Southern Bell

DEAR ABBY

Recommend 'Re-Saying' Your Marriage Vows

By ABGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When my hubby and I were married four years ago we couldn't afford a wedding so we went to the parson's house and got married. We have two kiddies and are very happy but I've always wanted a big church wedding with a white veil, attendents and moving pictures of it. We can afford it now but some of our friends say it is foolish to put a wedding on now. I have heard of couples re-saying their marriage vows, haven't you? Do you see anything wrong with having a wedding now and making my dreams come true? We would do it on our fifth anniversary in June. —WANTING A WEDDING

DEAR WANTING: The idea of "re-saying" your marriage vows is a beautiful one and I recomend it. But, I wouldn't go in for a white wedding with veil and attendants. Have a nice festive anniversary party instead.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. He doesn't go to look for a job and he says he doesn't intend to get one. We're living with my folks until he gets on his feet and his father sends him a check for $200 every month. He says he is satisfied, but I'm not. —NOT SATISFIED

DEAR NOT: If MY father sent me a check for $200 every month I wouldn't go to work either. As long as the "hand-outs" continue, your husband will enjoy his "vacation" with pay.

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 years old and have gone steady with the same boy since I was 15. He is a nice person but my mother thinks I can do better. I am very much confused. I don't know whether I'm in love with him, infatuated with him or just used to him. He is pressuring me for a yes or no answer. To tell you the truth I hate to throw away a chance to marry a nice fellow but I can't be sure he is the right one for me if I have gone with only him. Please help me decide. —CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Your letter is the perfect example of what can happen to girls who start going steady at 15. No wonder you are "confused." Don't agree to marry anyone unless you are 100 per cent certain.

DEAR ABBY: When my mother came to this country she brought a down comforter with her which she gave to me. My son was married so I thought it would be a nice gesture to give it to his wife. Their marriage lasted less than a year. He gave her all the household belongings which included my down comforter. I would like to have it back, but hesitate to ask for it. Should I? HESITATING

DEAR HESITATING: Write a nice note to your ex-daughter-in-law explaining that the down comforter has sentimental value. Offer to pay her for it—and remember, down is up!

CONFIDENTIAL TO VICKI: There are worse things than being an unwed mother. And one of them is marrying a man who is as worthless and selfish as "C" appears to be.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

CLOTHES QUIZ;

Enjoy Fashion That Spans The Season

By BETH BLAIR

Happily for most of us some fabrics can be worn the year 'round or for two or more seasons. This is something to remember when shopping for new clothes since this factor contributes to their wearing possibilities. A reader writes —

Dear Miss Blair:

Would it be too late to wear a gray chiffon dress to a dance in May? It has a few rhinestone decorations at the neckline. The skirt is very full.

Your dress is perfect for a dance in May. Chiffon will be good at that time and even later. It is one of those fabrics that has maintained its popularity because it seems right for the entire year. Silk lace is another fabric that carries over from one season to another with ease. They can be treasures in any wardrobe.

Dear Miss Blair:

Could I wear patent leather accessories with a tweed suit?

I think patent would be smart with tweed if you keep the accessories in a style that complements the line of the suit. For example, a casual suit with knit or leather trimming would not look right accessorized with dressy shoes and handbag in patent. On the other hand, a softly styled dressmaker type suit in tweed would look very well with them.

'Can Girl Love One, Want To Date Others?'

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

My question is, can a girl be truly in love with one boy, yet, still want to date certain other boys? I met a boy a year ago and when I entered college as a freshman last fall we started going steady. He has asked me to marry him when I finish school and I feel there is no one who could make me happier.

But at college I have met some other fellows who I would love to date as friends. Does that mean I'm not truly in love with this boy? Do you think it would be possible to make an agreement with him to date others for at least a few months? How would such an agreement affect our love, if it is love? Just what should a person do in a case of mixed emotions such as this? I want to do what's best for both of us.

Sandy

Dear Sandy:

I cannot say whether you are really in love with this boy, or not. Since you have doubts it seems that only time will tell. However, because you are interested in dating other boys and you have three years of college to complete before marrying, I suggest you talk this situation over carefully with your boy friend.

Explain, as you did to me, just how you feel about him; your desire to date other boys (as friends) and your confusion about the whole thing. If your boy friend is sure of his place in your affections, he may be willing to let you prove to yourself that you do love him. If this means dating other boys for a while, I think you should do it.

As to the effect it might have on your love — well, there's one sure thing. If you do find someone else whom you like more, it is far better for you both that you do it now rather than later on. However, it may turn out that once you feel 'free' to date others, the whole idea will suddenly seem less attractive — especially since it would only be fair (under such an agreement) for your boy friend to be 'free' to date others, too.

She Petted— Now is Sorry

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am 14 years old and attend high school. Not long ago a sophomore boy (whom I had known for two months) and I got involved in some heavy petting. I did it out of curiosity rather than any feeling of affection. At first I thought I was being smart and sophisticated but now I'm so ashamed I can't face the boy or myself and I'm afraid he will tell stories about me.

Mrs. Ricker, I'm not a bad girl or a tramp. I've even talked this matter over with my mother. She gave me some advice but I can't rest until I know the right thing to do. Should I go to this boy and explain or should I keep on avoiding him. Please help me!

Vera

I believe the less you say about this situation the better off you will be. If the boy is the undesirable type who will "kiss and tell," trying to explain things to him will only make matters worse. It certainly will not stop him from talking. On the other hand, if he is mature enough not to brag about what happened, consider yourself lucky and do not put yourself in a similar situation again.

Just be sure your behavior is so far above reproach from now on that even if the boy does gossip about you others will have reasons to doubt his stories. If you make it a point to keep avoiding him your classmates may notice it, so I suggest when you meet him just say, "Hi" in a casual way and go about your business.

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only — as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of this paper.

Goldwater Undisturbed By Coming Clash With Reuther

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R-Ariz) is unperturbed about his coming clash with Walter Reuther at the Senate Rackets Committee's inquiry into the Kohler strike.

"If Reuther wants to make a donnybrook out of it, all right," he said, "but I don't think it would gain anything."

Goldwater, who speaks in rather slow and deliberate tones, shows no concern about taking on the razor-tongued president of the United Auto Workers in a face-to-face meeting, possible later this week.

The two long have been feuding and only recently they swapped epithets of "coward."

Goldwater contends the four-year-old Kohler Co. strike bears out his argument that the UAW has been guilty of a pattern in violence.

But the UAW contends officials of the Wisconsin firm are responsible for the violence in the bitter dispute.

The 49-year-old senator, a businessman in private life, also has charged the UAW uses funds collected from its members for political purposes. As a result, Goldwater argues, Republican unionists are compelled to help finance Democratic campaigns because of Reuther's closeness to the Democratic party. The UAW says any money it uses for political purposes comes from voluntary contributions.

Goldwater has broadened his attacks to include others. He said in a Chicago speech last December that "power-starved labor bosses" are a greater threat to America than the Russian Sputniks.

A husky 6-footer weighing 190, Goldwater is a soft-spoken man with a wide friendly smile that belies his toughness. A World War II combat veteran, he is a reserve colonel in the Air Force and the only jet pilot in the Senate.

Goldwater was born in Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 1, 1909. He's board chairman of an Arizona firm which runs, among other things, a chain of women's clothing stores. He says no labor union has ever organized his firm's employes because "they have better pay and working conditions than any union would get for them."

Goldwater, a conservative, won his Senate seat in 1952 by upsetting Democratic Sen. Ernest McFarland. He faces a tough reelection campaign this year.

Married and the father of four, he likes sports, shoots a fair game of golf and played semipro basketball in his youth after a year at the University of Arizona.

He collects guns and books and is an expert photographer.

Cameron Parish Surplus Used In Hurricane Repair

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A State audit said today the Cameron Parish School Board had a $402,119 surplus June 30, 1957, now being used to help repair hurricane Audrey damage.

The report prepared in the offices of J. B. Lancaster, State supervisor of public funds, commended the excellence of the board's accounting.

"It is planned to make large expenditures from surplus for building repairs and erecting and equipping new buildings," the audit said, "necessitated principally by last year's hurricane."

The killer hurricane struck Cameron Parish June 27 with heavy loss of life.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Broadway Grapevine

Marlon Brando had business as well as pleasure on his mind when he saw "Blue Denim" the other night. After catching the new Broadway hit he lost no time in getting in touch with the authors, James Herliky and William Noble, to discuss buying the screen rights for his independent firm, Pennepacker Productions. There's no part in it for him, but Marlon would like to produce the film version.

Pat Suzuki, the skyrocketing new singer, is excitedly telling friends that her last two appearances on television won her an offer of the lead in Rodgers and Hammerstein's next musical . . . Rex Harrison is about to encounter a bit of a problem with Uncle Sam. The back taxes bit. . . . The publishers who paid an advance for Errol Flynn's autobiography are furious over his failure to turn in his manuscript. He pocketed the "against royalties" money a year ago, but has made himself all but inaccessible since, and recently there's been talk that they may sue him if he doesn't deliver the copy soon.

This week's suitor for Marguerite Belafonte's hand is Dr. Louis Lowman of Washington, D. C. . . . Ray Bolger, who was wanted for the leading role in the national company of "The Music Man," couldn't get together with the management. He wanted a 15-minute solo stint written into the second act and they didn't see it that way, so they're looking for other candidates.

There'll be few more stories in print about the Rock Hudsons' wrecked marriage, if the lawyers involved can do anything to prevent. So much of the publicity favored Rock's side and implied that his wife, Phyllis Gates, was to blame for all the trouble, she finally threatened several fan magazines with libel suits in an effort to curtail the "revelations."

Audrey Hepburn, back in Rome after completing African scenes for "A Nun's Story," isn't about to buy a plot of land in the Belgian Congo. She's glad her adventures there are over; she went through all sorts of nerve-shattering experiences ranging from a fire on the boat she was sailing in to snakes in her tent . . . J. Edgar Hoover's new book, "Masters of Deceit," can't miss being a best-seller. Even the publishers, Holt, are staggered by the volume of the early sales.

Whatever Sammy Davis Jr., said in his monologues to the audiences at the Chez Parce in Chicago, his remarks drew an unusually unfriendly press from the local scribes. (Oh, well. His new LP, "Sammy Jumps with Joya" is another gasser) . . . Michigan night club owner Arthur Braggs is wild about singer Della Reese. His latest token of affection was a gleaming white Continental Mark III with her initials engraved on all the hubcaps.

Lillian Ross, ringsiding at the Bon Soir the other night, burst into tears when Sylvia Syms sang "In Other Words." After the show Lillian explained she was terribly upset by her husband's illness—he's in the hospital — and the sentimental lyrics of Bart Howard's ballad touched off her sobs . . . New duo at Lucky Pierre's: Ralph Meeker and model Eliot Lor. (Yes, that a girl, Sam!)

Junior Standish, newly free, is making the rounds with Gene Kline . . . For your whatever-became-of file: Ex-boxing champ Bobo Olson now works part time in a San Francisco pawn shop . . . Virginia van Urk has come up with a new whodunit that will fascinate the Westhampton Set as well as standard mystery fans. Titled "Grounds for Murder," it delves into the subject of narcotics as well as the chic Long Island natives, and will hit the bookstalls around March 25.

Philadelphia papers behaved in Boston-ish fashion over the "Back to Methuselah" ads — made the producers drape the figure of Eve in a nightgown . . . Edith Head, who is designing 14 costumes for Carolyn Jones in "King Creole," promises "There won't be a sack dress in the bunch. All a sack is good for is potatoes." . . The Norman Paris Trio, long a fixture at the old Ruban Bleu, returns to the supper club scene next Thursday night at Julius Monk's Upstairs at the Downstairs.

A Russian movie outfit plans to produce the life of Paul Robeson . . . For the "Come on, now!" department: a 5th ave. firm specializing in filmed commercials has informed Madison ave. agencies that Brigitte Bardot will be available for that sort of thing when she arrives in the U. S.

If you happen to be bearing any special grudges this week, pop by the African Room and order a Mau Mau cocktail. The stirrer served with this thirst-quencher is a miniature voodoo prop suitable for incantations and other hexing rites: a tiny carved head on a stick, with wild-looking glass eyes. Delightfully gruesome little souvenir.

Soviet Brass Don't Laugh At Hope Jokes

LOS ANGELES (UP)— Comedian Bob Hope said Russian officials didn't laugh at his jokes, but someone went through his gag file in his Moscow hotel room.

Hope came home by plane Sunday from a six-day visit in Moscow with a souvenir Cossack hat and a pocketful of new wisecracks.

He said he wasn't followed during his visit but he did return to his hotel room once to find his gag files laid out on his bed.

"Russia's a fascinating place," Hope said. Since the Sputnik got in orbit "they have a national holiday over there every 92 minutes. Everyone without a stiff neck is considered a traitor."

Hope said he told a Russian audience: "I just gave a taxi driver five dollars and for change he gave me back 12 kopecks, a jar of caviar and a picture of Molotov in a bikini." He said that one set officials of the Institute of Culture whispering loudly among themselves.

Hope's trip was made to gather material for a one-hour show to be televised April 15. The comedian said he was going to "thaw out at Palm Springs," after attending the Academy Award presentations Wednesday night.

Downpour Brings Postponement Of Church Opening

LSU WINS DIAMOND SERIES

BATON ROUGE — UP — The LSU baseball team won the final game of a three-game series with Southern Illinois 13-10 Saturday. The two squads split a doubleheaderheader Friday, 5 - 4, 4 - 5. L scored seven runs in the third inning on three walks, an error and five base hits. Grady Kitchens was credited with the win.

Two Face Trial In City Court

Two persons, a West Monroe man and Monroe woman, were arrested late Saturday charged with disturbing the peace and were slated to be brought into court late today. The two will be tried in Monroe municipal court with Judge W. M. Harper presiding.

Arrested on three counts was J. W. Morris, 25, 1205 Bailey street, West Monroe, who faced the charges of aggravated battery, disturbing the peace and use of a shotgun. He was released shortly after arrest when he posted a bond of $1,500.

The second party, Miss Mary Jackson 22, 608 Wilson street, was charged with disturbing the peace and use of a dangerous weapon, a pistol. Her bond was set at $1,000.

In other action, an accident late yesterday resulted in two persons being given tickets for reckless driving. They were identified as James E. Holmes, Jr., 132 Jackson Street, and Robert L. Wilhite, 1400 South Seventh street, Monroe.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Louisville avenue and North Second street, when Holmes, driving west on Louisville attempted to make a left turn onto North Second street. Holmes' vehicle collided with a car driven by Wilhite, who was traveling east on Louisville.

TELEVISION NOTES

Education Crisis In Spotlight

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — Almost any Sunday afternoon of TV dialing these days will turn up at least one show devoted to the crisis in education.

Sunday's contribution was from CBS-TV's "Twentieth Century" and was called "Class of '58." It struck me as a pretty standard number of its kind and I want to touch on only one portion of the show because it tied in so directly with Leonard Bernstein's discussion of grand opera on NBC-TV's "Omnibus" Sunday.

Like most shows about education, "Class of '58" devoted part of its time to the complaints of a panel of teachers. Their squawks were familiar—low pay, lack of respect and lack of status.

Failed to Admit

But of course, what the members of this gathering failed to admit (and what all of these gatherings about teacher-problems fail to admit) is that the community fails to respect teachers because so many teachers aren't very good at their jobs.

How many really good teachers can you remember from your schooling? One, two, three? Maybe half-a-dozen? I know that it is a cliche to repeat "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach," but it is a cliche with a great amount of truth in it.

I bring all this up because as Leonard Bernstein has demonstrated on "Omnibus," learning can be a joy. I can recall few teachers in my own life who could hold me for almost 90 minutes as Bernstein did Sunday. This, despite the fact that Bernstein's excursion into grand opera was the least attractive of his TV lectures on music.

Nearly Perfect Teacher

Bernstein is very nearly a perfect teacher. He is strong on the content of his subject and he communicates effortlessly. And he brings in two extra qualities that must teachers lack — conviction and enthusiasm. He not only knows what he is talking about, he likes to talk about it, as a result, he makes you like it and want more.

I don't like opera particularly. I think it started and stopped with Mozart. But Bernstein made the puffings of a Wagnerian soprano and tenor bearable and he eased me through the gummy pasta of "La Boheme" with the minimum of psychic wounds.

As Bernstein has shown not only on "Omnibus" but on his occasional outings on CBS-TV on Saturday mornings with the "Young People's Concerts," he is a Babe Ruth of teachers. He hit only a triple (because, I think, his subject lacked starch), but he is still a giant among teachers, many of whom, unfortunately, are pop-outs.

Memorial Rites Held In Capital For Rep. Long

WASHINGTON (AP) — Memorial services for Rep. George S. Long (D-La) were held in the nation's capital today at Joseph Gawler's and Sons.

Long, 74, died Saturday at Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital as the result of a heart attack suffered Thursday. He was stricken with an acute coronary thrombosis.

Funeral services will be held Thursday in Pineville, La., Long's hometown, followed by burial in Greenwood Cemetery there. The body will lie in state Wednesday at the Hixson Funeral Home in Alexandria, La.

Zeake W. Johnson Jr., sergeant at arms of the U. S. House of Representatives, said all members of the Louisiana Senate and House delegation will be appointed to attend the Louisiana services.

Long was a brother of Louisiana Gov. Earl Long and the late U. S. Sen. Huey P. Long. He was an uncle of Sen. Russell Long (D-La).

Long was born on a small farm near Winnfield, La. He practiced dentistry in Louisiana and Oklahoma from 1904-52.

He was first elected to Congress from the eighth congressional district in 1952. He was re-elected in 1954 and again in 1956.

Active in matters concerning veterans, Long was a member of the House Administration and Veterans Affairs committees.

Youth Center Obtained By Tallulah Group

TALLULAH (Special) — After waiting three years while civic organizations attempted in vain to obtain a youth recreation center in Tallulah, teen-agers took the matter into their own hands this week end and got one.

O. N. Graves, president of the Madison parish recreation society, acting on a request of 30 members of the Tallulah High School speech class, has obtained an old building to serve as a center for about 1,000 teen-agers.

"It's a case of teen-agers trying to improve themselves" explained Gary Moore, one of the students. "We get self-conscious when people smear teen-agers. The rest of the kids feel that way and we're going to do something about it."

At the present time, high school boys and girls have the use of a few ping pong tables and a refreshment stand in a building at the playground.

The building which they have obtained will be moved to a place next to the "ping-pong" building and the teen-agers will remodel the inside.

The Lions Club has offered to paint the outside of the building.

A guidance committee for the project will be chosen at a mass meeting of students in the high school study hall today. What will be done to the inside of the building will also be decided today.

"Nothing here for teen-agers." That's the way the youngsters describe the present situation, according to Moore.

"We have parties at the Country Club occasionally, but they are few and far between," Moore said. We had three last week with the exchange students from Wisconsin — but that was the first time in several months."

After the exchange students left, a few Tallulah youths realized they "didn't even have a place to hold dances," Moore explained. "We started to check on what everyone does for entertainment and found out there was nothing to do. This recreation center will be a major way to cut out any juvenile delinquency."

Negro Legion Post Will Appeal Ouster

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — William Walker (Negro) Post No. 214 of the American Legion is expected to appeal to the national organization on the action of the all-white state executive committee in revoking its charter.

The state group acted yesterday in the Negro post's case on testimony heard March 2 by a four-man subcommittee.

Albert Powell, commander of the Negro post, was accused of using his Legion affiliation in addressing meetings of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

The subcommittee headed by Forrest G. Cooper of Indianola recommended revocation of the charter. The recommendation was accepted by the executive committee, headed by State Commander Fred Metcalfe of Itta Bena.

The subcommittee found Post 214 officers "were using their official positions in the American Legion to promote the ideals and purposes of the NAACP in direct violation of the Legion's constitution and by-laws." It charged the post had deliberately held down its membership.

An announcement said it was "apparent the main thing they wanted was to make sure their official connection with the American Legion was to further their zeal for the left wing dominated NAACP."

LIZ REVEALS

Mike Feared 'Softie' Label

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mike Todd, the cocky showman who put up a fearless front to the world, actually lived in mortal dread of one thing.

"He was afraid someone might find out he really was a softie," his beautiful wife declared in a bedside interview—her only one since she learned of his death in an air crash Saturday.

Of the crash, Elizabeth Taylor commented: "I begged him not to go—to wait one more day. I don't think he wanted to go. He came upstairs six times to kiss me goodby before he left the house."

The actress worried about bad weather at the time of Todd's departure and over the fact that she couldn't accompany him. A virus, which brought a 102-degree fever, kept her home — and alive today.

Of a dozen stories attesting to Todd's little known soft-hearted side, here are a few which Liz herself confirmed as true:

A maid employed by the couple only three months had a daughter who contracted cancer. When Todd heard of it he picked up the phone and ordered Dick Hanley, his executive secretary: "Find the best cancer specialist in the world — I don't care what it costs —and fly him here."

Hanley complied with the order and the daughter of a new maid got the finest medical treatment.

For years, Todd's New York office was located at 1700 Broadway. The unpretentious suite was kept clean by an old charwoman named Maude.

When "Around the World in 80 Days" was finished, the film's distributing company asked Todd to move his office to a more luxurious location, which he did.

One day in the midst of an important executive meeting, Todd suddenly interrupted: "Hey, what happened to Maude?" Told that she had been let go because the new offices had their own janitor service, Todd told Hanley: "See that Maude's still kept on salary."

That was more than a year ago and she still draws a weekly paycheck from the Michael Todd Co. —although she hasn't lifted a scrub brush for it in that time.

"Mike loved people," said Liz. "He often said he couldn't hold a grudge more than 20 minutes — and he never did."

She told how much she and Todd loved each other.

"No one ever will know just how much. Even our fights, and we had plenty, were a sort of love-making."

As she dozed off from the sedation given her by her doctor, she would awaken invariably with the same question.

"Why? Why? Why is he gone? I can't believe it. It can't be true. He was so alive and so happy."

Todd once said that he enjoyed a happiness given few men at his time of life. He was 50.

"Here I am with a second chance — a wife I love and a little baby. How many men my age get this kind of a break?"

He had a son, Michael Jr., now 28, by his first wife, Bertha, who died in 1946. By Miss Taylor, he had a daughter Liza, 6 months.

The baby is the image of her late father.

Body Of Boy Found In Pasture

GALLIPOLIS, W.Va. (AP) — A farmer found the body of 5-year-old John Wayne McKinney in a pasture about two miles from his southern West Virginia farm home yesterday.

Coroner Oliver Ashenaur said his investigation showed the boy died of exposure and "there was no evidence whatsoever of foul play."

As many as 1,000 searchers, including National Guardsmen and college students, had made a shoulder-to-shoulder hunt for the child since his disappearance last Monday.

Bullring Star Gored In Side

NORGALES, SONORA, Mex. (AP) — One of Mexico's bright young stars of the bullring, Miguel Angel, 28, was in serious condition today after being gored by a charging bull.

Angel, of Mexico City, was impaled in Nogales when a 1,000-pound bull hooked him through the side, the horn narrowly missing his stomach and spine.

Assistants leaped into the arena to divert the animal while Angel was carried to safety. Goring is not new to Angel, who survived what is called one of "Spain's most horrible" bullring injuries in 1954 when a horn was driven through his face, piercing to the brain.

He suffered another goring in 1955 in Monterrey.

MOSCOW — United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, in saying he felt optimistic about his chances of helping relieve East-West tensions:

"You've got to be optimistic".

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.—Singer Eddie Fisher, after spending the day with Elizabeth Taylor, whose husband Mike Todd was killed Friday in a plane crash:

"She's going to be all right. She's stopped calling for him now."

Cecil B. DeMille

Breaking The Age Barrier

By FRANCISCO (CHICO) DAY

Film Director, Los Angeles, California

Los Angeles, California

How much sweeter life would be if we could all lose the idea that old age is inevitable. It need not be so! If everyone could spend a few years with Cecil B. DeMille, as I have just done, he would know that I speak the truth.

Last summer Mr. DeMille celebrated his 76th birthday. But he absolutely and positively does not grow old. This I have seen.

When I was called in three years ago as first assistnat director to Mr. DeMille on "The Ten Commandments," I was 46, a hale, hearty 46, able to outrun, out-yell, and out-work boys of 18. I figured I would need all my energy because Mr. DeMille was then 73.

He never missed a single day's shooting, either on the Paramount lot or on location work in Egypt and the Sinai Valley. He never seemed to rest, never had special diet or accommodations. His normal day began at 7:30 a.m., in his office, and ended twelve hours later.

Keen Senses

The keenness of his senses, and his assumption that his seniority gave him the right to protect, rather than be protected, impressed some of our stars even more than his physical agility. Yul Brynner, our Pharoah of the Exodus, was astounded when, at a distance of 30 yards, Mr. DeMille saw "something wrong with Yul's belt." A jewel was out of place.

Then, as Yul was about to mount his chariot for the great pursuit after the Children of Israel, Mr. DeMille excused himself, stepped into the chariot and flicked the horses to a gallop. After executing a wide circle a full speed, he pulled up and explained, "I wanted to make sure it was safe for you, Yul."

"He isn't," as Yul said later with perfect truth, "getting any younger. But he makes you think this is the way getting older is done naturally, man as man should be at the peak of his life experience.

Yul's chance remark was what really started me questioning whether Mr. DeMille did somehow defy the human laws of physical and mental deterioration.

I recalled that Edison built chemical plants after he was 67, that Winston Churchill was past 70 when he was guiding the fate of England in the bitterest years of her existence so was General MacArthur when he was supreme Commander of the occupation in Japan.

I knew that the great Italian composer Verdi wrote his wonderful opera "Otello" at 74 and "Falstaff" at 80. Elihu Root revamped the World Court at 84, and the Venetian master Titian painted his canvas "Battle of Lepanto" at the age of 98.

What was the generator that could charge and recharge these men with an unfailing fountain of strength and inspiration? I asked Mr. DeMille point blank.

"Chico," he said, "Moses was an old man when he finished his work. But the Bible says that "His eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated." Age is no barrier to doing God's work. To young and old, He gives the power to do what He wants done. All we need is to be alert to His will."

From my association with Mr. DeMille, I have learned something of the philosophy that enables him to accomplish so much. Here are keynotes of it.

Prayer: I remember the day Mr. DeMille was asked if he believed in prayer. He searched the questioner's face a moment, judging the sincerity there and then answered. "I couldn't live a day without it. For me, prayer is thought contact with the Holy Spirit. It is the greatest power in the world."

Daily Bible Reading: By daily Bible reading and by making the Bible stories come alive for him, Mr. DeMille keeps constantly before his eyes the picture of man as man should be. Of Isaiah—a great favorite of his, who promises "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."

Refusal to Quit: Many of us will be forced to retire at some future time, and it is an insidious word. It means, according to the dictionary: "to withdraw from action, from circulation, to designate as no longer qualified for service."

Financially, Cecil B. DeMille could have retired many years ago, and rested on hard-earned laurels. He refuses, however, to accept the idea of retirement.

Enthusiasm and an Adventurous Mind: Mr. DeMille was once asked his creed and replied, in part: "Man was made in the image of God. Everyone of us was entrusted at birth with a precious fragment of the Divine Mind to develop for good or evil."

The development, he points out, is up to us, and the individual force behind development is enthusiasm. To cease to develop at any age is to grow rigid, and rigidity is a hardening process. The older person who loses his adventurous mind has more to worry about than one who develops hardening of the arteries.

Responsibility to Life; Mr. DeMille has a strong reverence for life and a vital sense of responsibility toward it. He said once in a message to law enforcement officers, "Man has made 32,600,000 laws, but hasn't succeeded in improving on the Ten Commandments."

I have heard him say that the saddest words ever written are in the Book of Common Prayer. "We have left undone those things which we ought to have done . . ."

Practice of Your Faith: It is the privilege of mature years, says Mr. DeMille to be an example of living, demonstrating faith to those coming up behind. With that challenge, no old age can be empty or lonely.

The final secret, I am convinced, of Mr. DeMille's energetic life and quick serene pace is that he walks eagerly and surely not toward sunset, but toward sunrise.

Year after year, as the report comes in, the same story is filed for the record. Advertisers continue to exhibit their confidence in the power of newspaper advertising by placing the bulk of advertising dollars in newspapers.

According to McCann-Erickson, Inc.-Printers' Ink Preliminary Estimates of Advertising Expenditures for 1957, advertisers spent a record $10,432,000,000 in all forms of media. Of this total, the largest share was again invested in daily newspapers — $3,325,000,000.

Advertisers turn to the daily newspaper because it gives the best buy for the money. Take a hard look at your advertising budget. Is the major share going into deeper-penetrating, more resultful newspaper advertising? If so, you're on your way to more sales per advertising dollar.

Mamie's Kin Must Face New Grilling

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Peter F. Mack Jr. (D-Ill.) said Sunday night that Gordon Moore, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower's brother in law, made $188,000 in the last five years from firms doing business with the government.

Mack, a member of the House subcommittee on legislative oversight, said the group will want to question Moore again.

Moore appeared before the subcommittee a week ago today and denied under oath that he ever tried to influence any federal agency on behalf of anyone.

His name was mentioned along with that of Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams in connection with charges of "improper" influence on federal agencies levelled by Bernard Schwartz shortly before Schwartz was ousted as subcommittee counsel.

The subcommittee will resume hearings Tuesday on the award of Miami Channel 10, the case in which Moore's name first came up. Federal Communications Commissioner Rosel Hyde will be the first witness.

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said over the weekend the subcommittee actually has finished its investigation of the Channel 10 case and hopes to submit by Easter proposed "legislative changes" in the FCC.

However, he said the group still wants to question the current commissioners and four former members who voted on the Miami award.

Damages High In Railroad Blaze

CHICAGO (UP)—Damages were estimated at about one million dollars today in a fire that destroyed seven diesel railroad engines and the roundhouse of the Chicago Belt Railway.

Low water pressure and high winds hampered firemen in battling the blaze Sunday. The flames were brought under control after about two hours when one wall and the roof collapsed.

Deputy Fire Marshal Harry Mohn said firemen at first hooked their hoses to hydrants supplied with water from the railroad pumphouse. However, there was insufficient water pressure and firemen had to connect to Chicago hydrants about two blocks away.

High winds fanned the oil-fed flames and sent billowing clouds of black smoke drifting across Chicago's South Side, attracting hundreds of spectators.

A railroad spokesman estimated damage to the roundhouse, the engines and other equipment at about one million dollars.

The line, which serves Chicago area freight yards, resumed operations today with borrowed equipment.

Two Burglaries Probed By Police

The Monroe police department is investigating two burglaries which occurred during the week - end, but which netted the party or parties no apparent loot.

Chief of Police James C. Kelly, Jr., said the Twin City Printing Company supply room and Rodriguez - Farr Insurance Agency, both located on South Grand street were entered. The party or parties entered the supply room through a rear door, then broke the wall into the insurance company offices.

In other action, the department detained four teen - age juveniles for damage to property in the 1400 block of Riverside. The four teenagers were turned over to juvenile authorities and will be handled in juvenile court. They were reported to have broken windows in a home belonging to John McKinley.

Being held in the parish jail, after being charged with theft of a bicycle was Wilbert J. Frost, Jr. He was apprehended in the 100 block of Depot street late last night and later transferred to the parish jail.

Bond was set at $450.

Another Monroe man, Max S. Pennington, 1510 Cole avenue, was picked up for Reno County, Kansas, authorities, who have charged him with removing mortgaged property from the area. He, too, was placed in the parish jail with bond set at $500.

Space Ships Must Brave Sun's Rays

NEW YORK (UP)—Space ships of the future must soar as did legendary Icarus through the withering heat on the sun's rays.

To prevent them melting like the wax on Icarus' wings, the Air Force is building the world's largest solar furnace that can almost reflect as much heat as the sun itself.

The furnace, which will test materials for space ships, guided missiles and nuclear reactors, will be built on a lonely mountain five miles north of Cloudcroft N. M., the Wall Street Journal said today.

Construction, starting next month, will take about a year to produce the 15 - story structure housing a 108-foot parabolic mirror, other mirrors, and controls. Trapping and concentrating the enomous energy of the sun's rays is expected to produce 8,500 - degree Fahrenheit temperature, about 80 per cent as hot as the sun's surface, the newspaper said.

ICC Cancels Pullman Train Plans To Stop

Illinois Central Railroad has postponed plans to cancel Pullman service from Shreveport through Monroe to Jackson, Miss., it was learned this morning.

John J. McKeithen, Louisiana public service commissioner, received a telegram from company officials notifying him of the recent development.

McKeithen's Monroe office made the announcement public to the press.

But it was not certain whether the railroad will drop its plans to take the Pullman off the route. It could ask for a hearing with the interstate commerce commission.

McKeithen was called in on the issue last week by Mayor W. L (Jack) Howard and Mayor James Gardner of Shreveport, who called for action.

A request urging the interstate commerce commission to stop the railroad company was filed by McKeithen.

At that time, McKeithen said several towns through the Monroe area were interested in preventing the company from taking off the service.

Illinois Central was scheduled to cancel the Pullman service today. The train leaves Shreveport and travels through Monroe to Jackson without delay to Washington, D. C.

McKeithen pointed out that if the service was discontinued, passengers in the Monroe area would have to catch the train at Jackson.

City To Repair W. M. Streets Cut By Sewers

Streets cut or disturbed by the West Monroe sewer lines now being laid will be repaired by the city, Mayor J. Allan Norris stated today.

"Recent rains have held us up in the McGuire and Highland Park areas of the city, but these streets will be repaired as soon as the weather permits," the mayor declared.

He pointed out if the streets were gravel before the lines were put down, they would be resurfaced with gravel; if they were previously blacktopped, they would be resurfaced with blacktop. He emphasized the city of West Monroe would have the repair work done.

Deputies Will Return Man On Theft Charge

Deputies from the Ouachita parish sheriff department were slated to leave for Hobbs, N. M., sometime today to return a man wanted here in connection with an automobile theft, Sheriff Bailey Grant said.

Grant identified the man as Ralph Wilson. He is charged in a warrant, sworn out by a Monroe automobile salesman, with theft of a late model vehicle. Wilson has reportedly signed a waiver of extradition.

The MAN SHE LOVED

BY VIDA HURST

Chapter 29

Andrew Calhoun did not accept his secretary's resignation. Instead he said curtly, "You can't walk out on me now. It isn't that simple. You agreed to stay until I had finished my book. And I'm certainly not going to change secretaries in mid-stream."

Maggie's sense of humor was stronger than her pride. She began to laugh and Andrew joined her.

"Now, I've given you reason to quit," he grinned.

"On the contrary, I withdraw my resignation. No other boss could possibly be as inconsistent. Saying I'm stupid, but insisting that I go on working for you."

"I suggest both statements be stricken from the record. I spoke under duress and I apologize."

He sounded as if he really wanted her to stay, and he looked like Roger more than ever as he stretched out his hand.

"We've both been under a good deal of strain, but let's forget it and be friends."

"Friends," she repeated, putting her hand in his. "But what about Roger?"

"I'm his uncle, not his guardian. All I ask of you is not to take what he says too seriously, especially if he's been drinking."

Maggie hoped he would continue dictating but instead he insisted that they cancel work for the day.

"The doctor is coming to make his weekly visit," Andrew said. "If I feel like it, I can correct what you have already typed. Not that I expect any errors," he said kindly. "But this material is highly technical as well as confidential. I'm writing it at the request of the government, you know."

Maggie had not known for the simple reason that he had not told her, but she could understand now why he wanted her to work in his home; also why he would prefer to keep the same secretary until the report was finished.

It was not because he liked her or her work, as she had vainly imagined. Maggie wondered how much longer it would take, but this was no time to ask him. She would spend what was left of the morning in the rose garden and in the afternoon take a nap. Sleep was more important to her than anything else at the moment. She would need all her strength to ask Roger if Nina's injury was serious.

As Maggie cut her favorite yellow roses she wondered what Roger's attitude would be. If Nina died he would feel guilty for the rest of his life, but if she recovered, as Maggie prayed that she would, Roger would be free to marry someone else, namely Margaret Page.

She fell asleep that afternoon with anxiety uppermost in her mind, and when she wakened it was waiting for her like a tiger ready to pounce. The early winter darkness depressed her. Switching on her reading lamp, she was surprised to see it was almost dinner time. Andrew would be having his sherry, but he would expect her to have dinner with him while they watched television. She heard voices as she descended the stairs and it sounded like an argument. Roger was upset, but Andrew spoke with more caution. Both men looked up as she stood in the doorway saying, "If you're busy, I'll have my dinner in the breakfast room."

"I'm leaving," Roger said glancing at his watch. "I promised to be back at the hospital in an hour."

"How is she?" Maggie asked quietly.

"The doctors say she will be in a wheel chair for months. She may be able to walk again but dancing is out. And dancing is her profession."

Roger looked sick. Worry had drawn lines in his face which made him seem older than his uncle, while Andrew appeared younger and more vital.

"Come in, Maggie. It's almost time for your favorite program. Sorry you can't join us, Roger."

Roger's face was so pale, Maggie was afraid he was going to faint. Then he said, in a tone Maggie never had heard him use before, "If you think it over, maybe you'll change your mind."

Andrew replied pleasantly. "No need to think it over, my boy. That's my final offer and you can take it or leave it."

"You give me no choice," Roger said furiously. "But I want Maggie to know it's your idea—not mine."

Andrew, sipping sherry as if it were medicine said, "Tell her then."

She faced Roger expectantly. "What is it, Roger?"

"I've made myself responsible for Nina's bills, but I didn't realize what I was getting into. She has no insurance and the hospital bills for one week will wipe out my savings account. I thought, under the circumstances, Andy would be willing to put up enough money to take care of her until she can find a job of some kind, but he has refused."

"I have offered another suggestion," Andrew said mildly, "which will cost you nothing since all bills caused by the accident will be paid by me."

"But you don't know the trouble Nina can cause. Once she gets able to get rid of her."

"That's a chance we'll have to take. If I am going to pay the bills it's up to me. And I've decided that your friend comes here until she is able to support herself."

Chapter 30

Maggie was almost as astonished as Roger had been at Andrew's decision to bring Nina home to recuperate from the accident, but fairness forced her to recognize his right to do so. Having Nina in the house would complicate the already complicated situation more, perhaps, than Andrew realized.

"Where are you planning to put her?" Maggie inquired, practically.

"Here in the library which I've been using," Andrew explained.

"But where will you go?"

"That's what I wanted to tell you. Dr. Kirk had a consultation with my orthopedist this afternoon. They have agreed that it is time for me to start walking again. By the time Nina is ready to leave the hospital I shall be able to move upstairs."

Roger said, "Nina will be well enough to use your wheel chair too, I presume."

"Precisely. I shan't be using it."

"And I suppose Maggie will be expected to help her dress and bathe."

Maggie realized this was sarcasm on Roger's part, but Andrew appeared to take it seriously.

"Maggie is my secretary — not a nurse. The fact that I can leave my wheel chair doesn't mean I can return to work. If possible, I shall finish my book first, but we can work in the living room. I'm keeping Ito as houseboy and for a few extra dollars a week Mrs. Venable will be willing to do such nursing care as your friend requires."

Roger said suddenly, "Nina appears to be more your friend than mine. You're making a big mistake to bring her here."

Secretly Maggie agreed with Roger, but Andrew said pleasantly. "My dear boy, I m not forcing you. If you can manage without my help it will be all right with me."

"I can't and you know it," Roger muttered on his way out the door.

Maggie's hand on his arm stopped him. "Your uncle is trying to help you, Roger. And don't worry about me. I understand."

His gratitude was diluted with self-pity.

"He's doing it to break us up, but it won't work."

"You and Nina?"

"No, silly girl! You and me. Andy wants you himself. Don't tell me you didn't know."

"I don't believe it. He's never shown the slightest interest in me. And I have never thought of him that way."

"You will. The fact that he's been unable to walk may have given you a distorted picture of him. He's not an old man by any means."

The idea that Roger might be right made her deny it.

"Now you're being ridiculous," she said. "I admire your uncle but I'm not in love with him. How could I be, when I was in love with you before I knew he existed?"

Seizing her hands he held her away from him as if he feared someone might see. His constant caution hurt her. Why was he so afraid of what other people would think? Was he ashamed of loving her?

"We have little enough privacy as it is," he said bitterly. "But with Nina here I won't ever be able to see you alone. Andrew knows that. It's the reason he's asking her to come here."

Maggie was so confused she did not know what to believe. She told herself she still loved Roger. She would always love him no matter what he did, but she trusted Andrew. No matter what the circumstances, nor how they might reflect on himself, Andrew would not lie.

Roger's voice was almost a whisper. "You may not believe it, but Uncle Andrew's no slouch when it comes to women. He has been avoiding them since his accident but he talks with the various members of his harem on the telephone."

Maggie remembered there had been calls from several women, which apparently were inquiries about his health. No particular voice had registered with her. Her employer's private affairs had not concerned her. But Roger had forced her to see his uncle in a different light.

"If he's so attractive to women maybe the 'Cobra' will fall for him," she said, thinking of the night she had first seen her at the Masquerade Ball.

"You'd better not let Nina hear you call her that. It's too true to be funny. But she's too crazy about me to fall for anyone else."

His confidence in his ability to hold Nina under any circumstances hurt Maggie.

"Then why don't you marry her?" she demanded.

For the first time since Nina's fall, Roger smiled. Forgetting caution, he took Maggie in his arms. [illegible] marry anyone but you, Maggie. Please be patient, darling. I love you."

Sled-Propelled Aircraft Posed

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A rocket that would start flight from a sled and end it as a piloted glider was proposed today by an aircraft specialist.

The sled launching was likened to a slingshot by Vjekoslav Gradecak, structural engineer for Ryan Aeronautical Co. He said it would eliminate the enormous fuel weight required to get the conventional tail-sitting rocket off the ground.

Gradecak, who will present his idea to a symposium on high speed aerodynamics Wednesday, said his rocket would get airborne speed of about 500 miles an hour from the rocket-powered sled on rails.

Its pilot would then ignite its own rocket power and it would climb to 30 miles and attain a speed up to 18,000 miles an hour. It would then glide back to earth.

Gradecak figured that on such a flight the winged rocket-glider could circle the earth. He said it might even be developed into a passenger craft for intercontinental flights.
